

Board's Report Asks Roads to Drop Pay Cuts

Tells President of Findings After Hearings

WAGES NOT HIGH

Would Have Carriers
'Withdraw and Cancel'
Notices

Washington—(AP)—The emergency railroad investigating board recommended today that the nation's railroads withdraw their demand for a 15 per cent reduction in rail wages.

In a report to President Roosevelt, the board said that the carriers should "withdraw and cancel" notices they had sent out that the reduction would be made.

The board, appointed by President Roosevelt in September to investigate the rail wage dispute, said that wages of railway labor "are not high even as compared with wages in other comparable industries."

In a summary of its lengthy opinion on the wage situation, the board added:

"A wage reduction in the railroad industry would run counter to the trend of wage rates in industry generally."

The wage dispute arose when carriers served notice they would impose a 15 per cent wage cut. Railroad labor brotherhoods voted to strike rather than accept it.

3-Man Board

Mr. Roosevelt, acting under provisions of the railway labor act, appointed the three man fact-finding board, composed of Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy, of the North Carolina Supreme court, Prof. Harry A. Mills of the University of Chicago and Dean James M. Landis of the Harvard university law school.

The members of the board presented the report to Mr. Roosevelt personally.

Stacy asserted he did not know what action Mr. Roosevelt would take on the report, but that the chief executive's problem now "is to avert a strike."

Stephen Early, White House secretary, told reporters the president had no comment on the report, but that he would confer Monday with leaders of railroad management and labor.

In his opinion, the board said that "a horizontal reduction of wages on a national scale would meet the financial emergency of the industry, since the savings would not be distributed merely to the needs roads."

Not Grounds for Cut

The report added:

"The financial distress of the carriers which had obtained since October, 1937, when the last wage increases were granted, is as yet a short-term situation."

"As such, it cannot be regarded as grounds for a wage reduction, especially in view of present indications of an improvement in the business of the carriers."

"In the light of these findings, the board concludes that the proposal of the carriers for a reduction of the wages of railway labor should not be pressed and recommends the carriers withdraw and cancel the notices which would put such a reduction into operation as of Dec. 1, 1938."

Officials Refused To Cooperate in Probe, Dies Says

Texas to Make Public Letters of Roosevelt And Others

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the house committee investigating un-American activities, announced today he would make public letters of President Roosevelt and the other administration officials in an effort to show that "they have refused to cooperate" in his investigation of communism and fascism.

The Texas said he would make the disclosures in a radio broadcast Monday night at 9:45 (C.S.T.) over the mutual system. He expected to reply especially to criticism by President Roosevelt of the house committee's handling of charges against Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan.

At the same time, Dies said he had received a telegram from Representative Dempsey (D-N.Y.) threatening to resign from the committee if witnesses were allowed to tear down the "characters of men who are outstanding."

Would Delay Hearings

Dempsey and Representative Healy (D-Mass.) both have asked the committee to cease hearings until after the general election.

"Mr. Dempsey has not been present and has not heard the testimony," chairman Dies replied curtly. "He should read the evidence before giving out statements."

Dies said he had been granted but 15 minutes for his radio appeal and so could not present all his letters from President Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, and Thurman Arnold, acting attorney general, replying to his request for help in the investigation.

56 Known Dead in French Disaster

Toll of Marseille Fire May Reach 100, Officials Fear

Marseille—(AP)—The official death list from last night's fire mounted to 56 today and it was feared the toll might reach 100.

Besides those known to be dead, many were missing, particularly in the Nouveaux Galeries de Paris department store where the blaze started. Firemen said there were "heaps" of bodies at the bottom of a stairway which collapsed.

Thirty-five persons were being treated in hospitals.

Herriot Asks American Help Toward Peace

BONNET AIRS PLAN

Foreign Minister Wants Economic Settlement For Europe

Marseille—(AP)—Edouard Herriot, president of the French Chamber of Deputies, appealed to the United States today to participate in "the work of peace" through possible establishment of a permanent international organization.

Herriot made his appeal before the radical-socialist party congress here, just after Foreign Minister George Bonnet had called for an economic settlement for Europe and the world as the sole means of assuring peace.

He said France was ready to talk with Britain, Germany and Italy to that end.

After Herriot and Bonnet spoke, the congress called for a world economic conference "in accordance with the wishes of President Roosevelt."

Roosevelt Message

The congress, in a resolution on foreign policy, declared that on such a conference depended better relations between Great Britain and France on one hand and Germany and Italy on the other.

(President Roosevelt, in a telegram to the international chamber of commerce council session at Paris, Oct. 21, said that "improvement of the basis of natural and profitable economic relations between countries" was essential to "the establishment of any satisfactory and secure world order.")

The message did not specifically mention a world economic conference.

The chamber president, who discussed the war debt situation at the White House in April, 1933, asked that President Roosevelt "accord me a new audience and admit that peace demand more than international conferences—it demands a permanent organization."

Delegates interpreted his use of the word "audience" in a figurative sense.

Former Kidnap Dies in New York

Pat Crowe, Figure in Cud- ahy Case, Victim of Heart Disease

New York—(AP)—Pat Crowe, 79, once sought in a nationwide hunt as the kidnaper of Edward J. Cudahy, Jr., son of the millionaire meat packer, in Nebraska in the late '20's, died today in Harlem hospital.

He was taken to the hospital Thursday after a heart attack in his furnished room in Harlem.

A man of many aliases, Crowe was one of the most colorful figures in American criminal history. Once the object of a manhunt with a price of $50,000 on his head, he later became a reformer and preacher to sidewalk crowds against the evils of crime.

Jewel thief, train-robbler, kidnaper and burglar, Crowe first appeared in police records under the name of Frank Roberts in Chicago, on July 5, 1920, when he was sentenced to eight years in Joliet prison for robbery.

FIGHT NOT ENDED
Milwaukee—(AP)—Dr. Livingston Farrand (above), of New York, president emeritus of Cornell university, warned the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association last night that it should not become complacent because of a two-thirds reduction of the tuberculosis death rate in the last 30 years. Dr. Farrand, who was a visitor here when the W. A. T. A. was founded in 1906, said principles of the organization today are the same as they were then.

Nation's Debt Is Under 1930 Level, Duffy Tells Crowd

Cashman in Spirited De- fense of Oleo Tax Measure

Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac, campaigning for reelection, told a crowd of about 200 people at the courthouse last night that "the total debt in the United States is six billion less than in 1930, if you take into consideration state, civil, town, and personal debts."

The burden of debt, the senator said, "has merely shifted from local agencies to the government."

"The government took the burden off the local taxpayer by taking the unbearable burden of relief off local governments. The government has spent 10 million dollars in relief in Wisconsin and if it hadn't, your taxes would have been doubled."

The Republicans may point to Andrew Mellon's slashing of the national debt, but while he was doing this, state, county, and city governments were steadily boosting their obligations, Duffy declared.

Characterizing "Roosevelt haters" as people who "set their alarm clocks for 3 o'clock in the morning so they'll have more time to hate the president," Duffy told the crowd he effected the resumption of PWA grants to Wisconsin cities.

Kenosha Department Has New Fire Chief

Kenosha—(AP)—Assistant Chief William J. Brady was named chief of the Kenosha Fire department yesterday after Fred J. McCallister, who will retire on Tuesday, was promoted to the position.

Move Made to Seek Changes In Labor Acts

Resolution to be Present- ed to Council of Agriculture

UNION ACTIVITY HIT

Farmers Resent Action in Connection With Cooperatives

Milwaukee—(AP)—A resolution asking modification of state and national labor laws was ready for presentation today to the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, which already has heard several speakers attack present labor legislation.

The council's board of directors approved the resolution in a meeting at Madison Aug. 6.

Advocates of the resolution said farmers resented the activity of unions in connection with farm cooperatives which led to a strike at one Wisconsin creamery, and tied up a cannery in Racine county while the spinach crop rotted.

"It becomes evident," the resolution said, "that existing federal and state labor relations acts have not only failed of their avowed purpose to improve the labor problem, but have promoted inequality of bargaining power and have increased the causes of labor disputes."

"Equality" Demanded

Demanding in the resolution are "equality" for the employer in labor contracts, posting of surety bonds by both parties to the contracts, equal rights in demanding labor law elections, and enforcement of all laws regarding property and movement of produce on the highways.

The resolution also asked "that organizations of labor be held responsible under the law for their acts. That it shall be an unlawful practice for employers, individually or collectively, or their organizations, representatives or agents, to coerce any employee in the exercise of his rights."

Assails Methods

A. H. Lauterbach, general manager of the Chicago Pure Milk association and formerly in charge of the dairy section of the AAA, said he was "not opposed to organized labor. It has done good for the country as a whole. I am against some of the methods used."

In Chicago, Lauterbach said, labor gets 4 to 5 cents per quart for delivering milk, while the farmer receives about 3 cents for the product.

"We've got to have more equality or we'll have to find some other means of delivering milk," he declared. "I'm not so sure but what store sales is the method."

Lauterbach criticized efforts to fix both consumer and producer prices. They might result, he said, in the milk industry finding itself a public utility.

Alcatraz Inmate to Go on Trial Monday In Slaying of Guard

San Francisco—(AP)—An Alcatraz felon, James C. Lucas, reportedly speechless from fear, was ordered on trial Monday for the murder of a prison guard in a vain escape attempt.

Lucas, 26, Texas robber, appeared in federal court yesterday when Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco psychiatrist, made an official report on Lucas' mental condition.

Doctor Catton said Lucas was "severely speechless but is not insane."

Lawyers appointed by the court to represent Lucas are Rufus Franklin, 24, a co-defendant, has sought a postponement on the ground that Lucas was insane. The attorneys said they could not prepare their case because Lucas would not speak to them.

The court, fixing Monday for trial, commented that it thought Lucas "sane enough to go to trial."

Lucas, Franklin and Thomas Limerick killed a guard, Royal C. Cline, in an attempted break May 27. Another guard shot Limerick to death. Franklin was wounded. Lucas fled from the rain of shots and surrendered.

Age Pension List Deliv- ered to Bank Build- ing, Report

KEITH IS NAMED

Assistant Director Testi- fies at Madison Hearing

Madison—(AP)—William Pfeiffer, assistant director of the state pension department, testified yesterday that the July list of some 41,000 old age pensioners, alleged to have been circulated by letters signed by Governor LaFollette, was delivered early this month to a Madison bank building in which the National Progressives of America has its headquarters.

Pfeiffer said the list was removed from the pension offices by a junior clerk, Richard Feil, on orders from George M. Keith, who is director of both the pension department and the state inspection and enforcement bureau. Pfeiffer said he assumed the delivery was made to the inspection and enforcement bureau office in the bank building.

The list, Pfeiffer said, was returned in about a week or ten days. He said he was away on departmental business at the time and that Raymond Pauley was in charge of the pension office.

Appears at Hearing

Pfeiffer testified at a hearing called by Harry R. McLogan, chairman of the pension board, and Democratic candidate for district attorney of Milwaukee county, who proceeded with his investigation alone when Keith could not be found and the third member of the board, James Borden, state budget director, informed McLogan by telephone that he did not want to attend unless Keith was present.

After tracing the lists to Keith's office through testimony given by Pfeiffer and Earl Langelle, accounting clerk, McLogan called for Pauley and Feil, but was told that neither was at work today. Pfeiffer said Pauley was attending a meeting of certified public accountants at the University of Wisconsin's

Judge Irritated By Spy Witness

Woman Causes Up- roarious Session: Trial in Weekend Recess

New York—(AP)—Kate Moog, black blonde government witness with thespian leanings, took her place today as the most colorful figure yet produced in the government's trial of two men and a woman on spy charges.

The trial lapsed into weekend recess, but only after an uproarious session (Miss Moog starring) that left spectators weak from laughing and Judge John Knox obviously irritated.

The subject technically under discussion was Miss Moog's connections with several important figures in the supposed espionage ring, but she spiced her testimony with patter on such matters as flowers, the weather and German night life. "Is this important?" the judge asked a defense lawyer on one point.

"I believe it is, your honor," he said.

"No, it isn't," interjected Miss Moog.

She told of taking a trip abroad with Dr. Ignatz Griebel, fugitive defendant, who is married. Two high German war officials, she related nonchalantly, offered to set her up in a villa in Washington.

Regarding suspicious conversations between the officials when she told of hearing Judge Knox asked:

"Didn't it occur to you there was something peculiar in all this talk of military secrets?"

Badger Company Buys Building to Expand Business

Printing Firm to Move Equipment to Langstadt- Meyer Structure

The Timmers Composition company, the stock of which is owned by the Badger Printing company, 125 N. Morrison street, has purchased the former Langstadt-Meyer building at 213 E. Washington street, according to David Smith, president and general manager of the Badger Printing company.

The building was purchased from a trust represented by George Lange, one of the nine owners. The deal was consummated Oct. 10 and the Badger Printing company will occupy the building about Jan. 1.

Mr. Smith said today his company intends to consolidate its two units, the printing plant at 125 N. Morrison street and the lithographing plant at 215 E. Atlantic street, in the new building.

The structure will be purchased and installed to take care of increased business, Smith said.

Housed in the Langstadt building presently are the O. R. Kleehaus and Oulton and Orblom, consulting engineers. Both will move before Jan. 1 but have not decided where they will locate.

The present Badger Printing company building is owned by Wilhelmina Meyer, 227 N. Morrison street. The title to the Langstadt-Meyer building was held by four trustees, Carl G. Seeger, Roy S. Saxton, W. E. Buchanan and George Lange.

John Doe Inquiry Is Asked After Probate Records are Missing

Monroe, Wis.—(AP)—District Attorney John Hermann, Jr., asked County Judge Marshall Peterson today to appoint a special prosecutor to conduct a John Doe investigation into disappearance of probate records from the county court vault.

The district attorney said he preferred not to conduct the inquiry himself because of the coming election and the possibility candidates for county offices might be intimidated.

Judge Peterson, who took the request under advisement, said he recently learned that 16 packages of court records, pertaining to estates handled between 1923 and 1930 were missing, and that seven had been returned.

The court said these were turned in this week by W. A. Luvians, who served as county judge from 1924 to 1931, but that Luvians would not disclose why he gave them to him. Smith said another person had brought them to him "for safekeeping."

Favors Special Coun- sel to Launch Case Against Heil

LISTS REASONS

Final Decision Up to Wis- consin Attorney General

Madison—(AP)—Assistant Attorney General Newell S. Boardman recommended today to his superior, Attorney General O. S. Loomis that special state counsel be appointed to start proceedings under the corrupt practices act against Julius P. Heil, of Milwaukee, Republican nominee for governor.

Boardman said he reached his conclusion after examining verified petitions filed against Heil by John B. Chapple, independent "Townsend Republican" candidate for the United States senate, and Edward G. Ihlenfeldt, West Allis, who was defeated for the Democratic nomination for governor in the primary election.

Chapple claimed that Heil and others offered him $2,600 to withdraw from the senatorial race. Ihlenfeldt charged that the campaign expenditures on Heil's behalf exceeded the amount allowed by law.

Sign Recommendation

The recommendation to Loomis was signed by Boardman and Deputy Attorney General Leo Vaudreuil.

It said that Chapple and Ihlenfeldt are entitled to a determination by the attorney general's office as to whether a proceeding under the corrupt practices act can be successfully maintained.

Loomis' assistants said that the only penalty involved would be removal from office in the event Heil is elected governor in the state-wide election Nov. 8.

Chapple alleged Heil and his campaign manager, Walter Wilde of Milwaukee went voluntarily to his room at the Juneau hotel in Milwaukee Oct. 11 and attempted to talk him out of running for the senate as an independent. He said August 1937, secretary of the Heil for Governor club, later was summoned and signed an order for $2,600 with a stipulation that he deliver 26 addresses for Heil at $100 each. He said Manager Trimmerger of the Juneau hotel informed him that Heil wished to talk with him.

Offered Hearings

Boardman and Vaudreuil said in their recommendation:

"The Chapple petition is supported by his sworn statement of considerable length and detail. Since receiving that statement we have checked the references which he has made to other people and other sources of information. We have exhausted all those sources. We have given Mr. Heil, Mr. Trimmerger, Mr. Frey and Mr. Wilde, those most vitally concerned with the $2,600 transaction, an opportunity to come to this office and make voluntary statements to us."

"Of this group Mr. Walter Wilde responded; gave us a statement and answered the questions which we propounded to him."

The recommendation said that assuming the consideration for the $2,600 order was what Chapple contends it was it is clearly an unauthorized disbursement for political purposes and should be investigated.

"Ihlenfeldt's petition charging that Heil's campaign expenditures exceeded the legal limit was filed October 3, about two weeks after the primary election."

Loomis' assistants said both Chapple and Ihlenfeldt appear to have the proper legal qualifications to start action against Heil and assume as the latter was nominated on the Republican ticket he registers an "office or quasi-office" under the primary law.

College 'More Than Mind Factory' New President Asserts

Clinton, N. Y.—(AP)—Hamilton college board today an assertion from its new president, Dr. W. H. Cowley, that a college is "more than a mind factory."

In an address prepared for delivery at ceremonies attendant to his inauguration as the college's eleventh president, Dr. Cowley declared himself in favor of an educational program that would stress the development of the student as "whole personality."

"I sign myself," Dr. Cowley said, "with the traditional British-American philosophy of education that the purpose of the college is the training of the whole student, not of his mind alone."

"I take this stance," he added, "because it is my deep conviction that in education and in living intelligence is not enough."

German and Polish Diplomats Try to Solve Problem

Berlin—(U)—Tens of thousands of Polish Jews were asserted by a Polish embassy spokesman tonight to have been deported from Germany in a nationwide drive.

German secret police continued their roundup of Polish Jews for deportation as Polish diplomats worked here and in Warsaw for an agreement to end the stream of "undesirable" headed for the Polish border.

Berlin newspapers estimated the total number of Jews affected by the deportation drive at "several thousands."

Find Blind Have Limited Success In Private Work

Receive Most Generous Treatment in Pension Programs

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Although the state-supported school for the blind at Janesville is making every effort to train Wisconsin's blind citizens for self-dependency, the blind have little success in finding private employment, according to John H. Holtz, president of the Wisconsin Association of Pension Department.

In the trades, few blind persons are able to work profitably, he said. "The professions interest some of them but they are handicapped because of lack of prior training for such professions and the difficulty of now preparing themselves."

Holtz pointed out that the blind receive the most generous treatment in pensions under the state and federal social security program in recognition of their more urgent need.

Amount Is Constant

From the monthly reports of the state pension department, which indicate that the number of blind citizens of Wisconsin receiving pensions remains almost constant, it is indicated that all of the needy blind are now receiving pension aids.

Wisconsin's blind are now receiving governmental aids amounting to an average of more than $40,000 a month. The average paid to each beneficiary now is slightly more than $22, while the total number now receiving such aids is 1,959, or about one and one-half per cent of the state's population.

Pension department figures show that Outagamie county blind beneficiaries are receiving less than average aid. The Outagamie county average is $21.68 compared with the state average of $22.18. Other counties in the Appleton area are now paying as follows: Waupaca $19.71; Calumet $22; Winnebago $19.04; Shawano $21.48; Manitowish $22.91; Brown $22.12.

Chapple Declares Himself Against War, for Pensions

Explains 7-Word Program In Campaign Talk Here

Giving his program in seven words, "Against war and for the Townsend plan," John B. Chapple, Ashland, independent Townsend Republican candidate for United States senator, spoke from atop his sound truck on E. College avenue at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was introduced by Dr. F. E. Sillick, Neillsville.

Chapple is covering every county in the state, speaking as many as 15 to 15 times a day. Just before he delivered his talk here he sat in the rear of his truck munching a sandwich.

"One of the two great questions before the American people today is the question of war," he said. "Propaganda is being fed to the people that war will bring good times. But that is not the way to real good times.

"I will fight with my last drop of blood against allowing America to be dragged into another war in Europe. The way to bring back good times for all is the Townsend plan.

"We have got to get the wheels of industry turning full speed, making products that all the people need, or we cannot have a higher standard of living. We have got to force the circulation of wealth produced back into the hands of the people. We have got to provide for our older people, not give them poor relief, but a real pension."

Claiming the Townsend plan is more than a recovery program, he said it would bring good times without war.

"I have refused anybody's dirty money and if I go to the senate, I will go free to fight without someone hanging onto my coat collar," he declared.

He claimed that Julius P. Heil came to his room at Milwaukee and "ordered him with words of profanity to withdraw from the race" and offered him a $2,600 bribe which he said he refused.

Chapple Terms Jeffery A 'Chicago Politician'

Marquette—(U)—John Chapple, "Independent" Townsend Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate, said here last night that "L. W. Jeffery of the Chicago Townsend office is a Chicago politician trying to run Wisconsin politics in a believe-it-or-not fashion that would astonish even Robert Ripley."

Chapple said Jeffery "is trying to palm off on Townsend club members a man who has never been in the Townsend plan and is not for it today and admits it, while at the same time he tries vainly to weaken the Townsend support of a Townsend club member running as a Townsend candidate."

Reforestation Plan Would Eliminate Drouth in State

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—A comprehensive, planned program of reforestation in Wisconsin will make the state as fertile as the Garden of Eden, according to experts employed by the state land conservation inventory which is now compiling the material covered in this studies in every square mile of the state during the last 10 years.

The program, according to J. A. Hilburn, chief of the land conservation department, will plant the extremely hardy, deep-rooted trees that will stand up to the fiercest winds and the agricultural loss between the extremes will be a steady, steady, steady growth.

While the tabulation of the reforestation plan is in progress, the state is preparing a booklet recommending for the whole state, they added, in general northern Wisconsin land should not be used for agriculture, but should be used for forestry and recreation.

In southern Wisconsin the reverse is true, they asserted, but still there are huge areas in that and the eastern section now requiring reforestation.

"The first thing to do with millions of acres in the state is to plant them to forests," Hilburn said. "They are unproductive now."

Hunt Through 75,000 Phone Books Finally Yields $1,500 Cash

Boston—(U)—Aching back muscles troubled an entire Brighton family after a hunt through 75,000 discarded telephone books for fifteen $100 bills carefully hidden in one of them—but they had the money to solve their pains.

The story goes back to last Saturday when Joseph V. Harkins came home with $1,500 receipts from his jewelry store. He slipped the money into the telephone book for a hiding place.

On Monday a telephone employee delivered a new directory and carried off the old one—and the money. When Harkins discovered his loss, the telephone company told him the discarded directories were in an Allston garage. He found 100,000 books there.

Harkins, his sister, her husband and a couple of nephews took turns poring over them, one by one, night and day. Last night after they had turned over three-quarters of the pile, the 15 bills fluttered out.

Claiming the Townsend plan is more than a recovery program, he said it would bring good times without war.

"I have refused anybody's dirty money and if I go to the senate, I will go free to fight without someone hanging onto my coat collar," he declared.

He claimed that Julius P. Heil came to his room at Milwaukee and "ordered him with words of profanity to withdraw from the race" and offered him a $2,600 bribe which he said he refused.

Chapple Terms Jeffery A 'Chicago Politician'

Marquette—(U)—John Chapple, "Independent" Townsend Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate, said here last night that "L. W. Jeffery of the Chicago Townsend office is a Chicago politician trying to run Wisconsin politics in a believe-it-or-not fashion that would astonish even Robert Ripley."

Chapple said Jeffery "is trying to palm off on Townsend club members a man who has never been in the Townsend plan and is not for it today and admits it, while at the same time he tries vainly to weaken the Townsend support of a Townsend club member running as a Townsend candidate."

Favorite of Treasury Retires at Age of 73

Washington—(U)—Miss Mary M. O'Reilly, whose 33 years of service have won her unofficial designation as the "favorite" of the treasury, retired today.

She left her duties as assistant director of the mint because she was 73. The law says she should have retired three years ago, but President Roosevelt extended her service on the urgent plea of clerks and cabinet members alike.

Reforestation Plan Would Eliminate Drouth in State

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—A comprehensive, planned program of reforestation in Wisconsin will make the state as fertile as the Garden of Eden, according to experts employed by the state land conservation inventory which is now compiling the material covered in this studies in every square mile of the state during the last 10 years.

The program, according to J. A. Hilburn, chief of the land conservation department, will plant the extremely hardy, deep-rooted trees that will stand up to the fiercest winds and the agricultural loss between the extremes will be a steady, steady, steady growth.

While the tabulation of the reforestation plan is in progress, the state is preparing a booklet recommending for the whole state, they added, in general northern Wisconsin land should not be used for agriculture, but should be used for forestry and recreation.

In southern Wisconsin the reverse is true, they asserted, but still there are huge areas in that and the eastern section now requiring reforestation.

"The first thing to do with millions of acres in the state is to plant them to forests," Hilburn said. "They are unproductive now."

David Smith, president and general manager of the Badger Printing company, announced today. The building, at 213 E. Washington street, now is occupied by the O. R. Kloeber company and Orinson and Orinson, consulting engineers. The move will be made to consolidate the lithographing and printing units of the company and to provide for expansion of the business. Bitterness Remains in Europe Month After Munich Meeting Puts End to Threats of War

(Editor's note: The following survey of the European situation is based upon information supplied by Associated Press correspondents in the major capitals.)

BY FRED VANDERSCHMIDT

London—(U)—There is peace one month after the historic Munich conference, but it is peace of bitterness.

Is it Neville Chamberlain's "peace in our time"? Is it David Lloyd George's "bad peace"? Is it the "peace of fear" which President Roosevelt has talked about? These items can go down in the ledger on the side of "peace in our time."

Whatever it cost, war was averted, and Chamberlain showed millions that war is never inevitable until it starts.

One reason for Adolf Hitler to fight has been wiped out. He said his demands for Sudetenland were his last bids for territory in Europe.

Britain and France are swiftly and steadily going after "realistic" friendships with Germany and Italy.

Spain has been rid of at least some of the foreign fighters who have made its civil war a menace to European peace.

Dangers Remain

Now put these items down on the other side of the ledger: Dangers that lie in Hitler's demands for colonies lost by Germany to the allied powers during the World War—although Hitler told Chamberlain these dangers were not a matter for war.

Memel and other German polder-lands where people are crying "one Reich, one fuhrer."

Embittered and large soviet Russia, hating Germany and Italy and disgusted with the democracies.

The race to make guns.

At the end of 20 years of independence Czechoslovakia lies under the shadow of Germany. Czechoslovakia knows her existence depends upon collaboration with nazi Germany.

The post-war Europe created at Versailles has crumbled. Europe now pleads its cause at Hitler's court instead of at Geneva, London or Paris.

Gains for Germany

In territory this peace has meant for Germany the annexation of 10,885 square miles of land. In population it has added 3,000,000 to Germany.

Economically it has opened up to the German industry one of the most highly-industrialized regions of Europe.

Poland and Hungary have taken or are about to get shares of Czechoslovakia.

Thousands of soldiers have glared at each other for weeks across the Czechoslovak-Hungarian frontier. Hungary, however, at first demanded territory which would have given her a common frontier with Poland across Germany's path to the east, but now is willing to let Germany and Italy cut out her slice of the Czechoslovak cake.

In a British atmosphere of mingled thanks and reproach, Chamberlain has laid plans for completing the eastern friendship accord with Italy and making one with Germany.

France likewise is publicly committed by Premier Daladier to co-operation with Germany and Italy—in fear of whom she spent many years building up alliances, which now are gone or going fast.

Both Chamberlain and Daladier have to share these new courses with their parliaments. What the parliaments will say may not be pleasant for either premier. It will be hardest of all for Daladier because he is not yet sure of his supporters.

Chapple Declares Himself Against War, for Pensions

Explains 7-Word Program In Campaign Talk Here

Giving his program in seven words, "Against war and for the Townsend plan," John B. Chapple, Ashland, independent Townsend Republican candidate for United States senator, spoke from atop his sound truck on E. College avenue at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was introduced by Dr. F. E. Sillick, Neillsville.

Chapple is covering every county in the state, speaking as many as 15 to 15 times a day. Just before he delivered his talk here he sat in the rear of his truck munching a sandwich.

"One of the two great questions before the American people today is the question of war," he said. "Propaganda is being fed to the people that war will bring good times. But that is not the way to real good times.

"I will fight with my last drop of blood against allowing America to be dragged into another war in Europe. The way to bring back good times for all is the Townsend plan.

"We have got to get the wheels of industry turning full speed, making products that all the people need, or we cannot have a higher standard of living. We have got to force the circulation of wealth produced back into the hands of the people. We have got to provide for our older people, not give them poor relief, but a real pension."

Claiming the Townsend plan is more than a recovery program, he said it would bring good times without war.

"I have refused anybody's dirty money and if I go to the senate, I will go free to fight without someone hanging onto my coat collar," he declared.

He claimed that Julius P. Heil came to his room at Milwaukee and "ordered him with words of profanity to withdraw from the race" and offered him a $2,600 bribe which he said he refused.

take all the WPA money coming to Wisconsin and dump it into a project on the Wisconsin river. I felt it wouldn't be fair to steal this money from 249 cities in the state. The president asked me to spend a weekend with him on his boat and during that time I explained the situation to him. He agreed with me and the local projects were started in Wisconsin again."

Duffy criticized the "LaFollette letter to the pensioned" and remarked that "some people really get religion just before election."

He praised Roosevelt's message to Hitler during the Czechoslovakia crisis, declaring that it was "influential in bringing about the Munich conference and that it will go down in history with the Gettysburg address as one of the finest contributions to peace and humanity."

Harking back to the "early days of the depression," the Wisconsin senator said that it was "fortunate for the people of the nation that Franklin Roosevelt had the ability to instill confidence."

Reviews New Deal Laws

He reviewed New Deal legislation, such as bank deposit insurance, the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, loans to farmers and home owners, and the WPA programs, discussing each measure and asserting they were responsible for a marked improvement in the nation's economic status and social outlook since Roosevelt became president.

Of WPA, he said: "This program is not only providing millions with food and clothing but is also creating much useful work. There are some things you can't measure with dollars and cents."

Senator Duffy said the wage-hour bill, now a law, will "help industries in the north compete with low southern wage scales" and that the 25-cent minimum would not work a hardship on employers. He was introduced by Dr. C. E. Ryan, Gustave J. Keller, county chairman, president. Former governor A. G. Schmedeman was at the meeting and talked briefly.

Cashman Talks

State Senator John Cashman, Denmark, candidate for congress from the Eighth district on the Democratic ticket, followed Senator Duffy.

Cashman opened his address by observing that he was "on dangerous ground" and that he had once told he would be heckled at the meeting. He read a letter which he said was from an Appleton law firm warning him that "any reference to oleomargarine is libel."

This issue centers on whether a product sold by I. D. Segal Produce company of Appleton is oleomargarine. It was declared to be oleomargarine recently in a decision handed down by Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner. Under the state law, oleomargarine is libel.

Cashman's own, the product is subject to a tax which is levied on dealers.

Defiant

After reading the letter, Cashman said: "I defy the attorneys and Mr. Segal. Ignorance of the law doesn't excuse anyone. It was enacted to protect the farmers."

When he had finished talking, Segal, who was in the audience, arose and began to speak. Keller, the chairman, interposed, saying that "we can't entertain any discussion between you two men on a purely personal matter."

Cashman said in his talk that he had "fought the battle for the farmers for 16 years in the state senate."

"I make no apologies. The I. D. Segal company and others who make butter substitutes are not as important as the farmers."

Points to Record

He presented his record in the state senate, explaining bills which he fathered and engineered through the legislature. Among them are the law providing that all beer sold in Wisconsin must be made from barley and the highway law, enacted in 1931, placing a gas tax and license on motor vehicles.

The highway law, Cashman said, was estimated to bring in 20 million dollars, but it was passed during a depression year and it was not until 1937 that it reached this figure. "Don't let anybody impress you by saying that during Governor Schmedeman's term, the allotments from this tax were less than they are now. The money just wasn't there."

The white-haired state senator said he favored cutting the $6 tax on a barrel of beer in half.

"If the tavernkeeper sells beer for five cents a glass he can't make anything and if he sells it for 10 cents we can't afford to buy it," he said.

Cashman was introduced by Gerald Jolin, Stephenville, candidate for the assembly from the First district.

Chinese Pastor Waupaca Speaker

Addresses Wisconsin Valley Convocation at St. Mark's Church

Waupaca—The Wisconsin Valley convocation met in St. Mark's church Thursday afternoon and evening, with a dinner served at 6 o'clock in the church basement. The guest speaker of the convocation was the Rev. Leighton Yang, Chinese clergyman of the Hua Sheng King Hui, the Holy Catholic church in China.

The Rev. Yang has charge of the Trinity church, Wuchang, and is one of the early missionaries of China. He has observed much of the present warfare and looting by Japanese soldiers in his country, and has helped in the refugee work among the needy.

At the annual convention of the Northwestern Wisconsin Cheese-makers and Buttermakers association at Clintonville, Oct. 25 and 27, H. N. Olson, buttermaker for the Waupaca Cooperative Creamery company, was the winner of the first prize, scoring 95 on butter entered at the convention.

Mr. Olson also won the first prize in the fifth district at the State convention of Wisconsin Buttermakers association which was held at Fond du Lac, Oct. 4, 5 and 6.

During his career as buttermaker, Mr. Olson won many high prizes at state and national conventions.

Butter, manufactured by the Waupaca Cooperative Creamery company is sold at premium on the Chicago market.

WPA Is 'Necessary' But Not Sufficient, LaFollette Asserts

Sheboygan—(U)—Presenting his party's plan to overcome unemployment, Governor Philip LaFollette said in a campaign address last night that the plight of the "jobless millions" remains the nation's foremost problem.

"The WPA program is a primary necessity until something better and more permanent is evolved," LaFollette declared. "This administration has been working with Washington in a common effort to raise wage standards on WPA projects in this state.

"Nevertheless, we cannot be satisfied with an emergency program. Progressives are committed to a program which will make full use of our vast natural resources to the end that all our able-bodied men and women may work at peaceful, wealth creating jobs.

"This will not only meet the critical problem of unemployment, but will increase the income of the farmer, the worker, and the businessman."

New Deal Making Move for Peace With Utilities

Uses 'National Defense' as Face-Saving Device, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Just before every election—it happened in 1934 and in 1936 and now in 1938—the administration makes a gesture of cooperation with business and often intimates that it will end its war with the public utilities.
Today another such gesture has been made, but this time it looks as if it is the real thing. For the administration has about reached the end of its stalemate with the utilities and must embark on a constructive program which will allow the utilities to borrow money, buy new equipment and provide the necessary expansion of generating capacity which has been all too long delayed.

The clever way in which there must always be in politics some device of a face-saving or camouflage character—is national defense. There's an electric power shortage affecting the country. This has been attested for more than a year now by the government's own experts. But the administration couldn't figure out a way to stop the controversy with the utilities without some new development. The war scare in Europe has just provided the needed background on which to project a settlement of the electric power question.

Two-Fold Problem
The problem has been two-fold—the interpretation of the life or death sentence under the holding company law, and the matter of government competition in the Tennessee valley and other regions of the country. The first has been aided by an obliging Securities and Exchange commission, which has given the interpretation desired by the president to permit the holding companies to readjust their structures without being destroyed. This is a matter of discretionary power only, and some future commission could reverse the rulings.

As for the government competition, this is something which the president found it most difficult to handle. He couldn't go back on Senator Norris and the public ownership crowd on his wing, and yet, if he didn't clear up the fear of competition, private utilities in certain areas couldn't expand. So "national defense" came in handy, but even this didn't dispose of the matter of financing. As long as the threat of government competition exists, the public wouldn't supply funds to private companies in those areas in what is known as equity financing or in other securities.

RFC
Now the government has stepped in through the RFC. Federal funds will be loaned to companies wherever they are unable to finance themselves, especially in areas where the threat of government competition exists. This is a splendid recognition by the administration of its own responsibility. If it is willing to take a loss on investments in these areas, the public might decide to take risks there, too, and maybe, in the end, a way will be found for the government and the private utilities to live alongside one another in peace and harmony.

As for the spread of government competition, the fact that the RFC is about to take care of financing in areas affected will do much to drive away apprehensions of investors, and maybe it will have its effect on the making of future grants by the PWA to exterminate local companies privately owned.

All this is on the assumption that the constructive program just announced is a reality and not merely a pre-election gesture to help get conservative votes. The official announcement says that 1,000,000 kilowatts will be added to the nation's capacity, but, since the latter is about 25,000,000, the addition is far below normal. In the period between 1920 and 1930, the annual addition was usually about 3,000,000, and there was no power short.

Large Expenditure
The addition of even 1,000,000 is important, but it will involve an expenditure for generating capacity of somewhere between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000, and is far from the one billion or two billions predicted in some quarters.

But with the generating capacity goes the building of transmission lines, so that, over a period of a year, the above sum might run to $150,000,000 or $200,000,000, yet it is not what the utilities should be spending. They should average about $1,000,000,000 a year for at least three years so as to catch up on the power shortages caused by the administrative operation of the whole electric light and power companies. Whether, even under the new auspices, equity financing—that is, common stocks in utilities—will be bought by the investing public remains to be seen. But it is significant that a start has been

Scratch New Deal and Find Same Pre-Roosevelt Democrats

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Oklahoma City—Democrats will elect their candidate for governor in the coming election and the Democratic party will continue to control Oklahoma. Yet there will be a change, almost as marked as if the state were turning over from a Democratic to a Republican regime. Oklahoma's New Deal governor, Marland, will be replaced by a conservative Democrat, Leon C. Phillips, a red-headed bulking, two-fisted heavy-weight sometimes referred to here as King Kong.

Raymond Clapper

Such changes as this are significant because they mark a shaking down of the Democratic party into its more conservative, old shoe, pre-Roosevelt ways. These shifts bear out what I have written many times. Namely that Roosevelt has, through his own personal force and leadership, erected an imposing New Deal facade over the Democratic party, but that underneath is an aggregation of political machines and practical politicians, big and little Tammanys and Pendergasts, who go along with the New Deal when it is good politics to do so, but when the influence of Roosevelt is removed, tend to snap back into their normal position. They reflect the innate conservatism of the American people which every once in a while, when conditions become too bad, go on a high-pressure reform spree, but inevitably subside back to normal.

Great presidents leave their imprint on the country, and it has been left the better for all of them. But they achieved only by great effort, by exceptional personal force, and by working fast in order to take advantage of their luck in being in office during the brief reform moods of the country. They have left their monuments, but by some strange quirk, it has been the fate of most of these great presidents to fail to carry their own political parties along with them.
After Lincoln, the Republican party slithered into the dark and devious ways of the Grant period, when graft and corruption, and economic freebooting reigned. Theodore Roosevelt made his fight, but after him it was not the Republican party that carried on his battle for progressive measures. It was Woodrow Wilson. And after Wilson the Democratic party lapsed back into drab routine, and was scarcely to be distinguished from the Republican party except that it was out of office.

Early Lost Wilson's Stamp in Eight Years

Eight years after Wilson the Democrats had soiled the progressive stamp of Wilson that they nominated a conservative Wall street lawyer for president. They were different from the Republicans only in that they nominated a rich big business lawyer while the Republicans nominated a poor country-town lawyer. Coolidge. Both parties were safe and sane. The Wilson-Bryan influence had completely evaporated and was revived only when Roosevelt took over and seized the opportunity offered by the depression which had created another national clamor for reform.

Although Roosevelt has fought harder than any of the preceding great leaders to stamp the imprint of his policies indelibly on the Democratic party, he may fail as they did. Scatch off the New Deal veneer almost anywhere and you find just an ordinary Democrat, not much different from the pre-Roosevelt vintage. It is true in Kansas, Iowa, Ohio, Missouri and a good many other states as well as here.

When the Oklahoma Democrats held their primary last summer, they rejected the New Dealer who hels and now vote as Democrats. They think as Republicans.

One of the first tasks Phillips has set for himself is to turn back the threat of federal control of the oil industry which is coming up as an acute issue. Low prices and overproduction are putting oil into the same class with wheat and cotton as chronic economic invalids. Phillips is dedicating himself to keeping the federal doctors out before they put a Wallace crop control plant into the oil industry.

City Grid Squad Ready for Clash At Little Chute

Egan Benched by Injury; Peterson, McCormick Will Start

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Merchants tapered off the week's practices with a signal drill last night and now with the exception of one man are in top shape for their invasion of Little Chute Sunday afternoon. Dutch Egan, Kaw signal caller who has sparked the city eleven to all its wins this year, will be on the sidelines with an injured back. Egan was also the team's best defensive back, with a knack of intercepting forward passes at crucial moments.

Hank Herman has been named to take Egan's backfield spot, and together with Bill Peterson, Bill McCormick and Bud Kalupa will form the starting backfield. It will be the first game for Peterson and McCormick, high school stars of last year.

Improved Attack

In the line Ed Etting and Johnny Nies will be at end, George Bloch and Martin DeBruin at tackle, and Herb Niesen and Frank Plotz at the guard spots. Wallace Mooney will start at center.

The Kaws will present a much improved attack Sunday with the new men. Formerly Bud Kalupa did all the running and passing, but now the squad has in Peterson a passer second to none and in McCormick a hard running back for those off tackle smashes. If Etting catches aerials as he has so far this year, with Peterson pitching, the Flying Dutchmen will have their hands full.

Strikers Demand Closed Shop at Edison Factory

Workers Preparing for Long Siege, Union President Says

New London — A demand for a closed shop agreement and threatened charges of unfair labor practices against the management of the Edison Wood Products plant here will continue the walkout of 125 members of the Furniture Workers local 1642 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America indefinitely, it was announced by F. M. Griswold, president, after a special meeting last night.

The strikers are preparing for a long siege, he said, and it is expected many of the idle workers will be forced onto the city's relief rolls. They are willing to work for food, he said.

The new demands have grown out of the controversy over the status of two foremen in the plant, William and Oscar Sonnett, who have asked for withdrawal from the union and have refused to pay current dues.

Griswold said the local was prepared to file charges with the state labor board, if necessary, accusing the management of interfering with the relations of union members but that such action would be taken only as a last resort.

Vote to Continue

The local voted unanimously last night to continue the strike until a closed shop agreement is secured to prevent the recurrence of similar controversies in the future, he said.

A request was sent to the Orange, N. J., headquarters of the Edison industries last night asking them to send a responsible representative to this city to negotiate directly with the union. Jay A. Hathaway, vice president of the Wisconsin State council of Furniture Workers, is assisting the New London local in their activities.

Griswold said that last night's action was taken after a conference Wednesday afternoon with the management and H. Herman Rausch of the state labor board as conciliator failed to produce any results.

Committee to Meet

Negotiations were started last August for a closed shop contract to succeed an open shop agreement on wages and hours which expired Aug. 31 according to the president of the local. While the Edison company has always adhered to a neutral and open shop policy in all its industries, the plant here has been operated by the local on a closed shop basis the last six years during which time it has maintained a 100 per cent enrollment of employees.

The executive committee of the local was to meet this afternoon to set up union committees to care for the relief needs and other problems facing the striking workers.

New London — Kroll's Bees beat Ed's Reds three games at Prah's today last night and forged ahead in the Plywood league. Krueger's Giants succumbed three games to the Pirates and were forced into the cellar. The Dodgers maintained a scanty lead with two wins over the Cubs.

Spirit High as Perfect Weather Favors New London March

New London—"The best homecoming parade we've had in years" was the general comment of hundreds of students and adult spectators who lined the streets for the annual event yesterday afternoon.

New London High school displayed high spirit in the parade at 4:30 which preceded the conference homecoming tilt with Shawano in the evening. For the first time in several years, the weather man bestowed a perfect day and the students made the most of it.

Floats showed more originality, cleverness and hard work than in many years. The Junior class was awarded first place in both the general and class divisions for its conception of a royal execution, guillotine, king, queen, executioner, Shawano victim and all.

Places were awarded classes to merit points in the school spirit spirit cup race. Freshmen placed second with their horse drawn doghouse, a mammoth affair with two girls at the rear with rolling pins keeping Shawano inside. The float swarmed with guards and carried the banner, "Keep Shawano in the Doghouse." Seniors were third with a wigwam and Indian braves while sophomores rated last with another Indian stunt.

Judges Praise Floats

Second place for general honors went to the Glee club and other music groups for its Shawano-in-the-casket idea. The faculty float received third place. It was an elaborate frame affair representing a schoolhouse with little children at class inside with the inscription "Remember When?"

Judges were Miss Loretta Rice, Miss Cecelia Knapstein and Miss Helen Knapstein and they were unanimous in their praise for every one of the 14 entries.

Works Board Sets Budget of Sewage Plant at $14,435

Reduce 1939 Appropriation to Operate Plant by $1,565

The 1939 budget for the operation of the Appleton Treatment plant was set at $14,435 Friday at a meeting of the board of public works, a drop of $1,565. This year's appropriation was $16,000.

The estimated expenditures for the plant next year called for a budget of $16,795 including an increase in wages of $1,325 and $1,000 for a new truck. The board slashed the wage boost, the money for the truck and $35 from miscellaneous operating costs to arrive at the budget figure.

Listed expenses in the final draft include: power, $900; chemicals, $2,330; repairs and supplies, $1,275; improvements, $1,500; miscellaneous operating costs, $465; fuel, $150 and wages, $7,815.

The board instructed Charles Debenack, representative of the Building Trades council, to file individual affidavits of bills for wages which he claims the Koepeke Construction owes about 60 employees who worked on the South River street paving project.

Debenack had filed a lien on $75 which the city owes to Koepeke on his contract with the city. The money will be held by the city until it is determined to whom the city owes the money.

Union building and that Feil had started a vacation this morning.

Before ordering an adjournment until next Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. McLogan made the following statement:

"I am dumbfounded in the light of the testimony given here. Mr. Keith told me, as chairman of the board, that he didn't know anything about the list of those names going out of this office. It may be only a coincidence that Keith can not be located, that Mr. Pauley is at a C.P.A. meeting, and that Mr. Feil, who took those records out of here, started a vacation today."

McLogan ordered Pfleger to notify Keith to be present at Wednesday's hearing.

"I will want Mr. Keith here in his capacity as director of the pension department, and not as a member of the board," McLogan said.

Jobs Not Endangered

Pfleger and Langetich were assured repeatedly by McLogan that their testimony would in no way jeopardize their jobs. He referred them to a telegram he had received from Miss Jane Hoyer, director of the public assistance bureau of the federal social security board at Washington, telling him that the investigation he had asked must be conducted by the state board.

Both pension bureau employees declared it was departmental policy to furnish without question information asked by their superiors. They said they did not know for what purpose Keith called for the list. Pfleger said he had no knowledge of another complete list anywhere in the state, and that he knew of no time that it was "let out" before.

A. J. Thelen, secretary of the Wisconsin County Boards association, was the only spectator who sat through the hearing.

Herriot Asks U. S. Help for Peace

Herriot said he hoped his words would reach the president.

Although Herriot long had been one of the stoutest champions of the League of Nations, he declared that that international organization, with its "pacts, covenants and private treaties, is sunk beneath the waves and we are watching the shipwreck of international morale."

He deplored the "collapse" of the nine-power pact to safeguard China's territorial integrity, to which the United States is a signatory.

"The United States can no longer disinterested itself in a divided Europe," Herriot said. "Recent events prove it."

Defends Munich Peace
Bonnet defended the peace of Munich as a good basis for reconstruction of Europe.

Insisting that peaceful organization of Europe was possible only with better economic organization, the foreign minister called for:

Rational organization of world production and development of yet unexploited world riches.

An international monetary agreement to spur exchange and consumption of goods.

He declared that employment of these suggestions would afford the means of "making happy, side-by-side" peoples who up to now had used their force for war.

Bonnet devoted a large part of his speech to defense of his policy in the Czechoslovak crisis. He argued that France had acted in the best interests of Czechoslovakia in agreeing to dismemberment of that republic.

Law Violations Blamed for 500 Crashes in State

September Fatalities Figure Shows Improvement Over 1937

Violations of traffic laws caused 500 accidents in Wisconsin last month, the state highway commission reports, but only 38 per cent of the September fatalities occurred in accidents due to law violations.

The month brought death to 74 in traffic accidents, compared with 92 in September last year. Of the 74 killed, 21 were pedestrians, yet of the 743 accidents reported to the state highway commission last month, only 80 involved pedestrians. Most dangerous type of accident, however, was the car-and-fixed object classification. Only 49 such accidents were reported, but they brought death to 21 persons. These included wrecks where speeding cars came to sudden stops by snatching into trees, bridges and walls.

Street and highway intersections were the danger spots on September's accident map, with 253 accidents occurring there, but only seven fatalities resulted from intersection crashes. Fifteen persons died in accidents on curves and hills — most of them in wrecks caused by attempts of drivers to pass in these danger zones.

Failure to yield right-of-way at intersections, and illegal passing were the most common causes of accidents in September. Drunken drivers killed six persons in Wisconsin during September, while a hit-and-run motorist was charged with another fatality. Defective vehicles were blamed for five fatalities.

$250,000,000 annually from the gross railroad payroll.

In its report summary, the board said evidence before it had impressed the members "with the necessity that now rests on government for a complete and thoroughgoing reconsideration of the relationship of the railroad industry to our national well-being."

The hearings before the board, the report continued, "have thoroughly impressed it with the fact that both carriers and railway labor have now a vital and common concern in the working out of an adequate, national transportation policy."

Both cooperation and imagination can be expected to be forthcoming from railway labor as well as from the carriers.

"Whatever may be the disposition of this present proceeding, the existing willingness to work together for what is fully realized to be a common end dare not be lost by strife over a question essentially small in the light of the ultimate benefits that are bound to accrue from some better answer to the general way problem."

That employees at the county clerk's office are wondering whether a young couple which recently applied for a marriage license has dropped wedding plans. Upon application for the license it was found that one of the necessary health certificates was invalid because of delay in seeking the license. Milwaukee—(U)—Delegates to the eighth annual convention of the fourth and fifth districts of the Wisconsin Federation of Music clubs yesterday adopted a resolution condemning the proposed unionization of 1,500 private music teachers in Milwaukee.

The resolution took its tone from remarks of Mrs. Edwin C. Thompson of Madison, state president of the federation, and declared efforts of the A. F. of L. Milwaukee musicians' union toward unionization were "un-American and contrary to the spirit of the fine arts."

Volmer Dahlstrand, union president, has asserted conditions in the profession are "deplorable" and that teachers should be guaranteed 50 to 75 cents an hour. The union also is aiming at lessons given "free" with purchase of instruments.

Issues in Campaign Clear, Wiley States

Beaver Dam—(U)—Issues in the Wisconsin election campaign are well defined, Alexander Wiley, Republican nominee for the U. S. senate, said here last night.

Objectives of "the revitalized Republican party," Wiley said, are:

"Shorter hours and higher wages for the laborer, increased incomes for the farmers, opportunity for youth, security for the aged — in short, more of the good things of life and a return to a truly democratic form of government."

Wiley asserted that "the New Deal party has given us six wrong years of experimentation where the government wants to be the master; where federal offices are the spoils of the party in power; where there is a constant attempt to impair the integrity and independence of the judiciary, and where control of the nation's purse strings is in the hand of the executive."

SPECIAL COUNSEL FOR THE STATE

The Progressives charge that Mr. Heil is spending an excessive amount of money in this campaign.

In retaliation a speaker for Mr. Heil collected together the amounts paid by the State of Wisconsin to special attorneys with the claim that these amounts represent a political tribute taken from the public treasury to maintain the party in power and provide it with speakers and leaders during the campaign. Among others Mr. Reynolds, formerly attorney general and now in charge of Indian claims, is named.

It would be a misfortune to confuse the people in regard to special counsel since they are essential to the life of the commonwealth and the amount of money paid them is generally insignificant in comparison to the bacon they bring home for the people. The party in power is always glad to use men who are sympathetic with its objectives but the record actually presents the names of prominent lawyers so appointed who were politically hostile to the present state administration.

One of the more important cases which arose under Mr. Ekern when he was attorney general will illustrate the point. Mr. Beggs, for several decades described in news accounts as "a wealthy utility magnate" died. His interests were with the North American company, an extensive utility holding company which owned the Milwaukee Electric Utility, another in St. Louis, and other smaller ones. There was an effort by those interested in his estate to claim residence for him elsewhere than Wisconsin. This effort was accompanied by the removal out of the state of the contents of the Beggs strong box at a large Milwaukee bank.

It was essential in the public interest that capable lawyers be immediately appointed and directed to devote all their attention to the case irrespective of other affairs because of the amount involved for the state and the likelihood that it would lose its proper income, regardless of the facts, if the property got beyond the jurisdiction of Wisconsin courts. Eventually the Beggs estate paid in back income and inheritance taxes a total of $1,225,000. The suit remained untied because the estate conceded the state's rights and paid up. Only the swift action of an energetic attorney general saved the day.

In cases involving the Wisconsin Telephone company over a million and a half has been collected through litigation and controversy and another half million claim is pending. In the chain store tax case, coming before the Supreme Court soon, still another half million is involved.

Many of these cases that involve so much money require immediate and constant attention. They often necessitate specialists who have had long experience in the same or similar litigation. If Wisconsin becomes interested in a patent case we hope it will be smart enough to obtain the services of the best patent lawyer in the state.

There are a variety of other cases where the governor or the attorney general cannot avoid the appointment of special counsel. There was, for instance, that extremely important lawsuit to inquire into the validity of the Wisconsin Development Authority, the institution erected to carry on the harnessing of waterpowers. The state of Wisconsin was the plaintiff. The Secretary of State, Mr. Damann, was the defendant. The immediate purpose of the suit was to make the Secretary of State audit certain accounts for indebtedness which he very properly refused to do until the court held the act valid.

The attorney general could not act for both sides. Had he tried to do so he might have been subjected to something more than a rebuke. As a matter of fact two lawyers appointed in this case were well known Republicans.

In respect to former Attorney General Reynolds who is specifically named by the Heil speakers the legislature passed a statute directing the attorney general to appoint a lawyer "to investigate and prosecute Indian claims, etc." Mr. Reynolds was required to take a civil service examination like anyone else for this particular position. His appointment resulted, however, from legislative action.

It is entirely proper for the Heil managers to bring forth these facts but the mere figures themselves mean nothing without further information. A wrong is committed by the party in power only when it appoints attorneys needlessly or pays them beyond a reasonable sum for their services. No facts have been forthcoming to substantiate any such idea.

In truth the attorneys named as special appointees of the governor have received from the state but a very small percentage of the great sums their services have already brought into the public treasury.

HAGUE TAKES THE COUNT

The issuance by the federal court in New Jersey of an injunction forbidding I-am-the-law Hague from deporting speakers whom he did not like or interfering with the distribution of leaflets and placards was expected as a matter of course. The thorn in the case is not to be found in these features but in the evolution of a fair and square system concerning the issuing of permits for the use of public property for speaking purposes.

Our congested society makes it essential to have some order and system in relation to the use of park rostrums. But the Hague government would not issue a permit excepting to those it favored. It claimed that the others were inciters to mob action. In many instances it could establish that the persons denied were extreme radicals accustomed to the use of a lot of glib words and past masters in scurrilous attack. Hague claimed that because of this misconduct these radicals were denied permits for their own safety, a plea something on the order of the "protective arrest" that came from the land of the Nazis.

Judge Clark suggested that those who had abused the privilege of free speech might properly be required to submit future speeches for censorship. The idea does not appear practical. There is no means provided of holding the speaker to the manuscript.

A better plan would involve the cancellation of speaking privileges to those who had merely slandered others just as we should cancel driving permits of those whose driving is a public menace.

Although cancellation of permits might properly be an added penalty it should not be forgotten that we have ample laws to punish those who violate propriety or decency from the public rostrum.

ALONG OUR OWN RHINE

The great Public Eye, often cocked or crossed, fixed its burning gaze upon the torn-up gridiron to examine a controversy worth while, weary enough of wars and election campaigns.

The referee's error in answer to Carnegie Tech that it was third instead of fourth down threw the football world into sudden and extreme convulsions. The fact that Notre Dame marched 50 yards to the winning score after the error when it hadn't been able to march at all before is more important just now than Hungarian demands or the Wage-Hour bill.

That such a situation may need legislation to stop bloodshed is established beyond debate by the close escape from a call to arms between the Rams and Bears. It was fourth down there, too, and night was pulling the curtains around the horizon. The Rams wanted to know how much time was left. An official said 8 seconds. The Rams can use that time very conveniently in a huddle and running play without risking the change of possession incident to a kick. So they smartly hold the ball and discover the official was about 40 seconds off in his calculations. Happily for the state of the country Mander missed his try for a goal which would have won the game.

And so in a game with rules drawn fine and written by virtual dictators over a period of 50 years experience, new problems suddenly present themselves, and something that never happened before is beginning to occur with deadly regularity.

THE SOBERING MACHINE

We may expect a certain amount of ribald publicity to get all eyes looking at the New York's World Fair of next year but the Drinker's Pal, the machine that sobers up a drunk as fast as the alcohol saturated his tissues—that is something else again and no fooling matter.

The Fair's medical director says this machine is a pronounced success and will be right on hand should any of the millions of visitors so far forget themselves as to take more than their capacity. We quote a description of the marvelous contrivance:

"It consists of a respirator and tank of carbon dioxide gas packed in a neat case. Breathing in deeply the patient receives a supplementary quota of carbon dioxide to accelerate oxidation or internal combustion of excess alcohol. Soon a little finger moves, words become unthicketed and articulate. Within two hours the last hiccup is silenced, the lancet is eased and the patient once more is fresh as a daisy."

The two hour treatment is for an excessive case of alcoholic indulgence taken to the point of coma. A correspondingly shorter return to normalcy is assured the more careful indulger.

Such a contrivance, however, can hardly await the opening of the Fair. It will rank as a new industry. And although, if successful, it may be rated as a benefit to mankind in easing the pounding headache and the jangled nerves that accompany a trip into the realm of drunkenness it may also, by removing the deterring punishment, invite even heavier drinking.

That puts us up to the proposition whether heavier drink with a cure at hand would be as harmful as drink today without any cure.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—I dreamed today of four great loves—the Sea, the Mountains, the City and Sky.
First I saw the Sea. I saw it stroking the shore. I felt its coolness slapping playfully at my feet as I wandered barefoot in the sand. I was happy watching as it rolled its frolicking foam over the rocks and as it stumbled, in a curving white roll, over an offshore reef.
I saw its blueness turn suddenly to dirty yellow, and its smooth face wrinkle into angry furrows. I heard the ripple of its laughter transform into a bellow of rage, and I watched in horror as it pounded with brutal blows against the breakwater.
I dreamed there were many people like the Sea.

Such are Dreams—I saw Man looking at a mighty Mountain. He stood in the valley and stared. His face mirrored awe. He murmured: "What strength and beauty and contentment are there! How great is the Mountain—and I, how very small!"
I dreamed that Man struggled up the Mountain's side; and that as he climbed he found that what had been a thing of strength and beauty and contentment when viewed from afar was scarred by fissures, matted with dead vegetation and tormented by crawling things and surly beasts; and at its highest place were shrieking winds, and rain and snow and cold, and nothingness.
And in my dream there was a voice that said: "Many people are like the Mountain."

I saw the City. She was a woman and very beautiful. She laughed a great deal. The laughter was metallic, cold. So were her eyes.
I looked into her soul, and it was crawling with termites of greed and worry and doubt and hate and envy.
She danced. A fool would say she were gay. She jingled gold in hands heavy with jewels—hands too soft ever to have earned the riches they flaunted.
She spoke. She told how wonderful she was; she told of her parks and tall buildings, and her pleasure resorts and her culture and her grandness. Even as she spoke, I saw at her back the sorry haggard army of her Poor.
In my dream I knew there were many people like the City.

Then the cynical vapors of my vision cleared, and I saw the Sky. It was blue and calm. Clouds rode across its face, shaping themselves into whatever my imagination commanded — into castles, and Walkure, and jolly giants, and circus parades, and fairy princesses, and cunning little pixies.
I saw it scowl, and I liked it even then. I liked the snap of its lightning, and the bark of its thunder. I liked it when, like a mother for her sick child, it cried.

I liked the Sky because it was Infinite, because it looked down on every pettiness of man, yet still could smile. I liked it even when, mourning the departure of the sun at night, it still could show us her treasure chest of diamonds, the sparkling stars.
And it came to me as I dreamt that there aren't many people like the Sky.

These, in my dream, were my four great loves; the Sea, the Mountains, the City and the Sky.

The Sea ebbs and flows, destroys, is fickle. The Mountains, so high and mighty, come one day to crumble.

The City is man's poor panacea against loneliness. Only the Sky, star-garlanded, cloud-tufted, is infinite, true and unchanging.

Looking Backward

Two flocks of swans, each numbering more than 50 birds, passed over the north part of Neenah that morning and alighted on Lake Winnebago. They were the first wild swans seen in Neenah for several years.

The Rev. Paul Oehlert, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church at Kaukauna, was elected chairman of the mission board at the meeting of the Evangelical Lutheran synod at Milwaukee that week.

Mrs. Homer Benton read a magazine article on Famous Hostesses and current events were given by Mrs. H. F. Heckert.

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 1, 1913
The campaign for $100,000 for a Young Men's Christian association building in Appleton began that morning with 200 workers. A total of $41,215 had been raised at 1 o'clock that afternoon. W. O. Thiede was chairman of the business men's committee while team captains were John F. Voge, R. E. Carners, E. E. Dunn, M. F. Sandborn, George R. Wettengel, George E. Johnston, Robert Filby, Frank P. Young, M. E. Halliday, John Hettinger, A. A. Wettengel, A. R. Eads, Louis Bonaldi, Jr., Joseph Koffend, Jr., H. K. Pratt, D. R. Runnels, G. S. Buchanan, John H. Neller, George Packard and B. F. Goodrich.

Halloween night was one of the quietest ever witnessed in Appleton aside from the practice of lowering electric street lights. Little soaping of windows was reported but an iron fence on Superior street was knocked down and the steps at Kuehler's grocery was carried away. A bicycle was found up on a post behind Mike Steinhauer's grocery store.

A Verse for Today

by Anne Campbell

BABY SISTER
(For Betty and Peggy Ann)

When, after many years, the baby came,
We were afraid
The happy world might never be the same
For one small maid.

She was "Big Sister" now, and jealousy
Might cloud her day.
The loving bond, the joyous harmony
Would melt away.

But soon we found that new-born babies bring
Love so supreme
There is no petty thought, no whimpering
To cloud our dream.

Only our house of joy has spread to hold
A brand-new door,
As tenderly our big girl we enfold,
And love her more!

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Early this year the department of commerce wrote of U. S. trade with Germany:
"With a highly developed domestic industry in Germany, including American business and factories, and rigid import restrictions, it is doubtful if we will ever regain this once important market."
That is the situation Walter Funk, German economic minister, faces as he proposes to negotiate a bi-lateral trade treaty with the United States.

But strangely, all is not necessarily lost. It is a well known fact that the state department would like to see something grow out of the four-power Munich conference besides a clearing house for war-less conquests.

Hull Wants A Look
Secretary Hull has agreed that restoration of trade would be highly desirable, but he refuses to commit himself as to what this country will do before he first has a look at Funk's proposal.

At present the trade is declining. Germany will buy little more than it can sell here. Its sales are limited by special tariffs imposed by the U. S. partly to offset German trade subsidies and partly to meet Germany's discriminatory trade relations favoring other nations.

The American policy is to demand and give "most-favored-nation" treatment in its commerce. Secretary Hull has based the success of his whole reciprocal trade program on that principle. Under that system, whenever one country is given a trade concession, all other countries are entitled to the same provided they in turn give the U. S. as good terms as they give other nations.

A Controlled Trade
The one current exception is Russia, unless we note Cuba's protective treatment. With Russia, the fact that all production is in the hands of the government required a special quota arrangement.

The argument can be advanced that when viewed realistically, German trade conditions are akin to those in Russia. Under its foreign trade regulations, the German government also can dictate the time and quantity of imports involving foreign exchange, and largely govern exports.

There are a lot of irons in the fire. Some statesmen believe that the best way to beat Hitler is to extend relief to the German people by means of increased trade. Others suspect Hitler will make certain that any profits from the trade will continue to be used to buy bullets, not butter.

We're Competitors, Too
The fact remains that the profitable trade this country once had with Germany is much reduced. The table shows the history of U. S. exports to and imports from Germany.

	Exports	Imports
1913	$294,848,000	$165,637,000
1914	311,437,000	88,836,000
1925	470,344,000	164,251,000
1930	278,269,000	176,981,000
1933	140,024,000	73,185,000
1936	101,956,000	79,679,000
1937	125,884,000	92,644,000

The 1937 increase was laid largely to higher prices. And in that year the United States found itself supplanted to Brazil as the principal supplier of cotton to Germany.

A principal difficulty in the way of arranging any trade agreement with Germany on a strictly bi-lateral basis is that most of the things Germany manufactures come in direct competition with American production.

Your Birthday

SCORPIO
If October 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m.; from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m., and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., and from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.

Let the spirit of sociability influence you if you wish to find this Sunday, thoroughly enjoyable. Seek companionship and, if possible, take an active part in the social life of your community. Personal contacts may enable you to gain some very useful knowledge, that is apt to have a very broadening effect on your ideas. Some time during the day it may pay you to be a good listener. Be careful about correcting and contradicting people, for these tendencies are likely to be the cause of much irritation. Do not let idle curiosity get the best of you, for it will be the basis of a good many misunderstandings. Any attempts to practice deception seem to be doomed to disaster. Married and engaged couples, and those who are busy discussing the chances of facing the future together, must display a willingness to listen to reason and to lend their cooperation whenever possible this day.

If a woman and October 30 is your birthday, you cannot afford to appear to be otherwise than a cheerful person, if you have hopes of being popular. Through investments, earnings or a stroke of good fortune you are likely to find yourself with a fat bank account. Your affectionate nature should win you many friends. You perhaps will display a decided talent as a musician, artist, actress, publicity woman, teacher or sales agent. Your marriage, in all likelihood, will be the result of a real love match and be most successful.

The child born on October 30, should have a good ear for music, a retentive memory, and be artistic. A talent for making friends will help this youngster through life.

If a man and October 30 is your natal day, you are apt to be a decidedly intellectual type, with keen business judgment, and a capacity to make money. As a politician, farmer, engineer, scientist, actor, clergyman, lawyer, chemist, author

Ex-President's Son Debates F. D. R.'s Friend in Ohio Race

ROBERT J. BULKLEY
Got pat on back from Roosevelt

ROBERT A. TAFT
'Favorite son' wants senator's job

(This is the fourth in a series of articles on campaigns having national significance.)

Columbus—(A)—Ohio, "mother of Presidents" is watching a good old-fashioned political show that may help cast some of the roles on the 1940 stage.

The New Deal is a clean-cut issue in the race for the senate between Robert A. Taft, son of the late president and supreme court justice, and Senator Robert J. Bulkley, administration supporter who received a pat on the back from President Roosevelt in his bid for reelection.

They Stick To Issues

The two candidates have done nothing to distract the voters from the issue. Taft, member of the famous family and Cincinnati lawyer, denounces the New Deal. Bulkley, a Cleveland lawyer, defends the President's purpose. They refrain from personalities.

And just to make it plainer, they revived the old custom of political debates. They agreed to meet each other on the same platform six times in various cities.

Thus again Ohio, by tradition a

"pivotal" state, gains national political significance.

Republicans, with a mind to 1940, particularly are watching the trend of the Buckeye state. Taft, Ohio observers believe, would become a national figure in 1940 should he unseat Bulkley. He was the "favorite son" of the Ohio delegation in the 1936 Republican convention.

Labor Divided

National interest in the gubernatorial contest is directed largely to labor's divided stand in this industrial state. Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Democratic national committeeman, is pitted against John W. Bricker, former Republican attorney general.

Sawyer has the backing of CIO's Labor Non-Partisan league and the personal endorsement of William Green, president of AFL, who votes in Ohio.

But AFL locals all over the state have split in deciding whether to support Sawyer or Bricker. The state federation has taken no stand. Sawyer, often a New Deal critic, won over Gov. Martin L. Davey, who called out troops in last year's "little steel" strike in Ohio.

Personal Health Talks

DATA ON QUACKS

How Can I Know a Competent Physician From a Quack?

This query, submitted by a correspondent identified by the pseudonym "A. Name," was presented here July 16 with my offer to pay $25, $15 and $10 respectively for the best, second best and third best answers readers might send in, provided such answers seemed to me good enough to print here.

The answer submitted by H. A. MacF., of New Jersey, seems to me good enough to print here, and accordingly H. A. MacF. receives $25, H. A. MacF. says:

There are physicians one would hardly dare openly call quacks but who richly deserve the title.

The physician who makes a careless, cursory examination, then bases a haphazard diagnosis on his findings; who because of lack of time or an indifferent or prejudiced attitude toward progress neglects to keep abreast of the times is just as unethical as any other quack.

All physicians realize that an error in diagnosis is possible and unforeseen complications may develop; therefore the honest physician does not guarantee a cure.

The physician who permits a patient to remain dressed during examination or uses instruments sparingly or not at all but relies on the old finger taps and ear against body method hasn't the best interest of the patient at heart.

The good physician compels the patient to strip, does not rely solely on his own eyes, ears and fingers, but uses instruments of precision freely and various clinical tests. He may even advise further tests at a hospital or laboratory where special equipment is available.

The unethical physician will usually condemn any method or remedy with which he is not familiar or for use of which he is not equipped, and will urge the patient to submit to the "old reliable" method, as he terms it.

The honest physician, if not familiar with the method in question, will investigate the method and, if he finds it good, will recommend a physician qualified by experience and equipment to use it.

A good physician doesn't have to canvass the public for business; therefore one should avoid the physician who, in any manner, advertises special bargains, free examinations or superior skill.

(H. A. MacF.)

The following hint is taken from another letter:

If you are a stranger in the community, ask the State, County or local medical association, society or academy of medicine to name a reliable physician or specialist for you. In some communities the County Medical Society or Association provides such service for the public.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Hay Fever and Asthma

I have been subject to hay fever and asthma for thirty years and have come to the conclusion it is a blood and nerve disorder. (H. C. M.)

Answer — Whatever that may mean. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monographs on hay fever and asthma.

Old Fogey Medical Notion

Vitamin chart distributed by a milk company states that various forms of high potency vitamin D, irradiated yeast, vosterol and the like, do not replace cod liver oil and should be used only under medical advice. (A. S.)

Answer—That's just a fancy conceived by some medical theorist and constantly repeated by irresponsible "authorities." In my opinion high potency vitamin D, as in irradiated yeast, does replace fish liver oil for all known purposes in human nutrition, and it is just silly to say that you must go to a doctor to obtain his sanction for taking vitamin D. That sort of hokum was all very well in the days when people knew little about vitamins—and doctors are people—but it is absurd now. There is no evidence that any one ever gets too much of vitamin D, or too much of any other vitamin, for that matter, doctor or no doctor.

JOBLESS MUST BE HIRED

Beoming munitions and other industries in Japan may be compelled to give work to the country's emergency jobless. Government officials in Tokyo are considering an order to this effect as outlined by the National General Mobilization Law. All laborers, technical experts and skilled workmen are to be registered before 1939. Efforts of the Welfare Ministry and the Commerce and Industry Ministry to find work for those forced out of business by the materials control regulations have had little result. New labor disputes are feared and the Government may outlaw them and establish minimum wages.

ROYAL TWO INOCULATED

When the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester arrived by air at Nakuru for their visit in Kenya Colony they were inoculated because of recent cases of plague in that vicinity. Awaiting them was a big box-body car for their exclusive use, it being specially suited for picnics and safaris. They were greeted by Lord Francis Scott and his daughter, Pamela. Thereafter the entire party, including the Governor and his wife, drove into the town, where the royal guests bought shoes and shirts. The Governor and Lady Brooke Popham had met them at an official reception tendered them in Kisumu.

'Cocoanut Grove' Coming to Elite

Fred MacMurray Stars in Role of Young Band Leader

The world's most famous nightclub is brought to the screen for the first time in Paramount's "Cocoanut Grove," the new film coming to the Elite Theatre on Monday and Tuesday Bargain Days.

Distinctly new type of film fun is presented in this gay romance that revolves about the trials, tribulations, and the final success of an unknown swing band trying to break into the actual Cocoanut Grove, mecca of all young band leaders.

While the production is studded with hit tunes, the story has not been subordinated to music and specialties. On the contrary, each musical number makes what the movie scripters call a "story point," contributing to the logical development of the plot.

Fred MacMurray, last seen with Carole Lombard in "True Confession," is starred as the swinging young band leader. His lovely leading lady is radio thrush Harriet Hilliard who plays a role in the picture identical with her occupation in real life. She is Mrs. Ozzie Nelson, and sings with her husband's band.

Ben Blue, the Yacht Club Boys, Rufe Davis and Dorothy Howe are in the supporting cast.

'Vacation From Love' On Midweek Program

The laughable difficulties of a young married couple is spotlighted in the newest entrant for comedy honors, "Vacation From Love," booked for the special midweek program at the Rio theater on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Dennis O'Keefe and Florence Rice, two of Hollywood's most promising aspirants for stardom, are teamed for the first time in the comedy and both give an excellent account of themselves.

The supporting cast is one of the most capable seen in recent months, including Reginald Owen, ideally cast as the weak-minded advertising genius, June Knight, Edward S. Brophy and Truman Bradley.

The story concerns the stormy adventures of a young couple who after two years of marriage find themselves constantly unhappy because of petty quarrels and bickering. They seek many solutions to their problem, finally hitting upon the novel precedent of taking annual vacation from love.

Co-featured on the same program is Jane Withers in her latest picture, "Always in Trouble." The picture shows Jane as a poor little rich girl who decides to reform her family. The family has gone high-hat with their coming into money and Jane doesn't like it.

On account of Jane the family yacht is wrecked and they're all marooned on a supposedly deserted island. Here Jane's "cure" is scheduled to begin, but before any action can be done about it a group of smugglers, who use the island as a secret base, take over. They decide to hold the family for ransom.

Those poor, foolish kidnappers! Jane's a little more than they bargained for. And just when she gets things under control, along comes the Coast Guard to clinch matters. But Jane accomplishes her purpose. The family is tamed and "Big Sister" finds romance.

Horror Pictures on At Appleton Theater

The two biggest horror pictures in years, "Dracula" and "Frankenstein" are now being shown at the Appleton Theatre.

Arch man-made friends, life-breathing electrical machines, dangling bodies, human skeletons, ghouls, and wicked hunchbacks all have their sinister places in this shivery, eerie and ghostly, daddy of all the thrill-films, "Frankenstein," that opened to a half-scared, half-fascinated, packed house at the Appleton Theatre yesterday.

There are many scenes in the film that will both literally and figuratively prompt you to clutch at your neighbor's closest arm as the screen very nearly devours you, but there is one in particular that the most blasé will never be able to resist. The excited young Dr. Frankenstein, played brilliantly by Colin Clive, and his devilish little dwarf assistant, Dwight Frye, complete the last surgical operation on their home-made man. They dash to their shrieking electrical inventions and test the life-giving ray . . . then . . . But it is entirely too precious to give away! Of course you will see "Frankenstein," and anyone who takes the least bit of thrill away from it for you should most certainly be relegated to the basement.

Mac Clark, the talented little actress who is taking the world's film fans by storm: John Boies of the golden voice, charming manner, and excellent acting ability; sagacious-looking Edward Van Sloan; and chattering Frederick Kerr and Dwight Frye, have many honors to divide in "Frankenstein," but the screen has never seen anything quite like Clive and Karloff in their characterizations.

The second picture on this big program is that horror picture of all times, "Dracula," starring Bela Lugosi.

BOOKED AT RIO FOR FIVE DAYS

Tyrone Power, Annabella, and Loretta Young head the cast of "Suez." One of the finest pictures to come out of Hollywood in years, the picture is booked to open at the Rio theater for a five-day showing next Friday. With a romantic story, ideally suited to the stars, the film depicts the building of the Suez canal. The sensational climax is said to be more spectacular than any similar scenes ever filmed.

The added feature on the same program is "Swing That Cheer," a collegiate story featuring Tom Brown, Robert Wilcox, Andy Devine, and Ernest Truex.

Hollywood — Personal Observations. The guy who usually broods in a corner at Hollywood parties is Franchot Tone—and plenty of people would give more than a penny for his thoughts. Bennie Barnes executes a little jig at the completion of each scene—it's her tribute to Luck. Mention Max Baer and Maxie Rosenbloom snorts; talk about Maxie Rosenbloom and Max Baer. There's a clerk in a Boulevard candy store who is a perfect double for the late Jean Harlow.

Howard Hughes is an inveterate doodler with a strong preference for little inter-locking squares. Maybe Burgess Meredith can dance without singing, but he never does. You'll never realize just how beautiful Jeanette MacDonald is until you see her in a Nile green dress.

'THE CROWD ROARS' COMING WEDNESDAY

"The Crowd Roars" brings Robert Taylor and Maureen O'Sullivan, the two sweethearts of a "A Yank at Oxford," together again in a pulsating, red-blooded story of a prizefighter who wins fame and romance against overwhelming odds. Also in the cast of the new picture, showing at the Elite Theatre for 5 days starting next Wednesday, are Edward Arnold, Frank Morgan, William Gargan, Lionel Stander and Jane Wyman.

Raft, Fonda Star In Alaskan Film

'Spawn of the North' Is Coming to Appleton Theater

George Raft, Henry Fonda and Dorothy Lamour form Hollywood's newest trio as the cast leaders in "Spawn of the North," Paramount's sensational drama of Alaska, which will have its first showing next Friday at the Appleton Theatre. Raft, who won coast-to-coast applause for his performance in "Souls at Sea," has a similar role in the new picture. He plays a robust and devil-may-care Arctic fisherman, whose disregard for law and danger is in sharp contrast to his devotion to the highest ideals of loyalty and friendship. Fonda, who now plays Raft's lifelong friend and final reluctant enemy, comes to the screen from his triumph in "Jezebel."

Miss Lamour, cast as a frontier Alaska woman who loves Raft and Fonda equally has a role distinctive on two scores. It not only marks the biggest dramatic role in her spectacular motion picture career, but in addition she appears minus the famous "Lamour sarong," which she made famous in "The Jungle Princess," "Hurricane" and "Her Jungle Love." Prominent in supporting roles are John Barrymore, Akum Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, and Hollywood's newest star discovery, pretty Louise Platt.

Based on the well known novel by Barrett Willoughby, "Spawn of the North" tells a sweeping story of two lifelong friends caught in the cross-currents of a war for fishing rights off the Alaskan coast. Although the two men, Raft and Fonda, lead opposing factions in a bloody feud, their friendship grows stronger than the war of the Northland. It tells what happens when war hits the fishing country of the Archipelago, with fishermen pitted in a life-and-death struggle with bold salmon-pirates. Romance, in the persons of Miss Lamour and Louise Platt does as much as the salmon war to drive a wedge between Raft and Fonda. When Raft realizes that his war has brought nothing but unhappiness and danger to the three people he loves best, he makes a great sacrifice to prove his real devotion to them. Henry Hathaway directed this great film and took him more than three years to accomplish this.

The second feature on this program is "Touchdown Army" with John Howard and Mary Carlisle. Thrills come faster than shots out of a machine gun . . . romance runs riot . . . all the color and class of West Point on parade.

army overcoat. "Perhaps" he told the director quietly, "I would look a bit more soldierly if you'd re-shoot that scene now." And he pulled back the overcoat to display, on his tunic, the Croix de Guerre, the Legion of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross!

Theatrical folk, being temperamental and emotional, are as full of phobias as a sardine can be full of fish—and here's one of the strangest yet. A certain producer admitted to me today, while discussing the Charlie McCarthy fad, that he is insanely afraid of ventriloquists' dummies and traced the complex back to its beginning. When he was seven years old, touring the county with his vaudevilian parents, a ventriloquist traveled with them. And his seven-year-old mind was fascinated and puzzled by the dummy. One night, after the show, he sneaked to the case where the dummy was kept and lifted the lid. But the ventriloquist, seeing him, made the dummy say: "Get away from me, you little devil!" "I know it's silly," the producer told me, "but I've trembled at the sight of a dummy ever since."

The case of Bela Lugosi—to my way of thinking one of the finest actors who ever stepped before a camera—proves that a too successful publicity campaign can boomerang and seriously injure the man it was intended to help. In his native Hungary and in New York, on the stage, Bela played a great diversity of roles. In Hollywood, he unfortunately made his first hit in a horror epic—"Dracula." And the Film-

George Raft and Henry Fonda, play the roles of two seafaring companions in "SPAWN OF THE NORTH" which is starting next Friday at the Appleton theatre for one entire week. Drama as Savage as the Untamed North! Paramount's lusty romance of Alaska . . . land of the thundering glaciers . . . where dangers are greater, friendships stronger, hates more vicious, fun more riotous and life more rowdy than anywhere else on earth! ville publicity brigade immediately out-did themselves in their efforts to convince the world that this quiet, book-loving Hungarian was a real-life vampire. I don't know how the public reacted, but the producers themselves fell for it so completely that they ruled Lugosi out for everything but horror roles. Today, chatting with him, I recalled a story about a mysterious dog that howled every night in the hills near his home. "That," said Bela sadly, "was not a dog. It was a wolf—and it's been on my doorstep ever since."

Speaking of horror pictures reminds me that the Republic opus, "Orphans of the Street," has a sequence in a cemetery. And when the company moved to the fake graveyard to shoot it, there was none of the usual horseplay. A property man with a grisly sense of humor had engraved the names of the director, technicians and cast on the plaster tombstones.

They tell about Samuel Goldwyn holding up a bridge game for long minutes while he stared at his cards. "Whom are you waiting for, Sam?" demanded one of the other players—it's your turn. "I'm not waiting for anyone," snapped the great Goldwyn. "I'm waiting for myself!" (Copyright, 1938)

'The Sisters' Now On at Rio Theater

Bette Davis, Errol Flynn Co-Star in Vigorous Drama

"The Sisters" which opened yesterday at the Rio Theater is three-point entertainment news. It co-stars Bette Davis and Errol Flynn for the first time; it is the picture-ization of Myron Brinig's novel which has been one of the best sellers of recent years; and it is as vigorous a drama as this cinematic year has produced.

Flynn and Miss Davis do the most striking acting jobs of their respective and brilliant careers—in roles that are completely new departures for them both. The starring combination is a truly happy one and film audiences will undoubtedly be clamoring for more.

Besides the two stars, others of the splendid cast who stand out are Anita Louise, as the thrill-seeking sister; Jane Bryan, as the home-body; Henry Travers and Beulah Bondi, who do superlative work as the parents of the girls; and Donald Crisp, Alan Hale, Ian Hunter, Dick Foran, Patric Knowles, Laura Hope Crews and Lee Patrick.

A full-bodied drama, with romance, tragedy and comedy rubbing elbows, even as they do in real life, it is a memorable entertainment experience for the whole family.

Although "Sons of the Legion," which is the added feature on the

MAN SWALLOWS WATCH

Charged with stealing a watch by swallowing it, an Indian has been arrested in Rangoon, India. It was handed to him by a friend a Burman, who wanted to swim in the Royal Lake. When the friend returned and the timepiece was missing, he became suspicious and had the Indian arrested. The Indian was taken to Rangoon Central Hospital, where a search for the watch was started.

same program is a drama about American Legionnaires and the problems of their children, it is guaranteed to have a powerful appeal for every other member of the community as well. It is a sincere and hard-hitting story about typical Americans and shows what effect the true spirit of Americanism can have on their lives.

"Sons of the Legion" is one of the most important pictures of the season because it shows that the ideals of the American Legion are not confined to the ex-service men alone. They are passed on by the men to their sons, on whose shoulders the perpetuation of the American spirit must of course ultimately rest. If boys all over the country accept the burden as eagerly as do those in the picture, America can place high hopes in the coming generation.

Menuhin Still Shies From Union; 'Defense Of Art' Father Says

Los Gatos, Calif. — (7) — The artistic squall over whether Yehudi Menuhin will join a musician's union blew from all points of the compass today, with the latest gust coming from the typewriter of the noted violinist's father and secretary, Moche Menuhin.

He said it was a question of conscientious objections on the part of his son and the "defense of pure art."

The senior Menuhin said Yehudi has all packed up to go to Los Angeles to carry out his contract for two concerts with the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, Nov. 3 and 4.

In Los Angeles, Ted Carr, assistant executive of the American Guild of Musical Artists, said he had a contract on his conscience, too—that unless Yehudi joined the A. G. M. A., then that contract, it could not be put into the contract it made two years ago with the orchestra.

New York editors of the guild said they would be saying that Yehudi had already publicly announced that he was not joining the A. G. M. A. and that such a statement of sympathy was far as he wanted to go.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD

Madison—It sounds quite a bit like last minute campaign advertising, but the state Democratic organization is predicting that President Roosevelt will enter the Wisconsin campaign picture soon to supplement the personal letters which Chairman Parley of the national committee recently sent to the candidates on the party's state ticket.

In the words of W. D. Carroll, hard-boiled new chairman of the state Democratic committee, "Roosevelt is all washed up with the LaFollettes."

The doubtful observer will remember, however, that Senator Duffy, eager to return his senate to the governor for a couple of months this summer and early fall that FDR would come to Wisconsin to give him a boost. He hasn't come yet and the election is near.

ADD CHAPPELLE Are the Republicans beginning to realize the threat which has been thrust before them in the Townsend Independent candidacy of John Chappelle?

Alexander Wiley, who seemed to believe a month ago that his path to Washington was all cleared for him, and who carefully avoided all commitments earlier in the campaign on the both sides of the question, now broadcasts his solicitude for the Townsend bill.

It is interesting here to consider the Democrats' attitude on the Chappelle candidacy. They feel—at least Senator Duffy's personal associates feel—that it will cost 100,000 votes, most of which will be shorn from Mr. Wiley's total. That means, they believe, that the contest is between Duffy and Ekern. And they sound plausible enough.

KEITH'S TROUBLE One of the least enviable positions in the state capitol today is the one held by George Keith, head of the state pension department. Keith is now in pretty hot water in the federal government's threatened inquiry into Governor LaFollette's famous pension letters. As head of the accused department he is in an uncomfortable seat. And there lies a story.

Keith in the capitol is regarded as one of the most competent of state officers, and is supposed to be a Republican. Under the state government reorganization program it became evident pretty early that he was slated to lose his pension department administrative job, for the department was to be combined with others into a new department of social welfare. Slated for that, according to capitol sources usually

Halloween One of Favorite Seasons for Parties

One of the favorite party seasons of the year, Halloween time with its grinning pumpkins, black cats and sheeted figures always brings on a round of entertaining. Costume parties, such as the Appleton Riding club gave Thursday night, are usually in preponderance. The top picture, taken at the club's party, shows, left to right, Miss Gwen Dittmer, dressed as a ghost, riding Flying Cloud; Miss Dolores Tewes as a Spanish lady, on Romeo; and Lester Van Dreel, shrouded as a ghost, riding Big Shot. Miss Cora Guenther, secretary of the club, is standing at the left, and Mrs. E. P. Hughes, right, is standing beside her horse, Gilda Gray.

The flickering light of candles provided the only illumination at the Halloween attic party given Thursday night by Mrs. John P. Reeve at her home on W. Atlantic street. Guests of honor were two brides-to-be, Miss Elizabeth Shannon and Miss Helen Jean Ingold. The two lower pictures, taken at the party, show, left to right, Miss Marjorie Jacobson, Miss Ingold and Miss Ellen Sweet, bobbing for apples, and Miss Betty Buchanan, Miss Helen McGrath and Miss Martha Rodda, hoping the lights in their cat and pumpkin lanterns won't go out. Impending Doom Pervades Pages Of New Mystery Tale, 'Rebecca'

By Jean Wiley Thieckens

"REBECCA" by Daphne Dumaourier. One of Daphne Dumaourier's chief charms as a novelist is her remarkable versatility. She is the author of seven highly successful books: "The Loving Spirit," her first novel, is heart-warming and gay; "Gerald" and "The Dumaouriers" are merely pleasantly amusing biographies of her father and grandfather, respectively. Her grandfather was the author of "Tully," that thriller of the gay nineties while Gerald, her father, was England's foremost actor a generation ago. On the other hand perhaps only Edgar Allen Poe in his "Fall of the House of Usher" could equal her latest novel, "Rebecca," for morbid malevolence and a sense of impending doom.

Daphne Dumaourier is still in her early thirties and judging from her portraits is an extremely personable young woman. From a long line of cosmopolitan ancestors she has acquired a suave sophistication which is reflected in all of her writings.

Cornwall Estate The locale of "Rebecca" is an ancient and very beautiful estate in Cornwall, one of the most famous places in all of England. The present owner's whole-hearted love for and devotion to this stately old home is the ruling passion of his life. The beautiful rooms are lined with portraits of those who have been born and died within its massive walls during bygone centuries.

The story opens in Monte Carlo where the writer for the story is told in the first person—the pale companion to Mrs. Van Hopper a rich and vulgar American woman of uncertain age who spends her days pursuing celebrities. One afternoon in the hotel lounge Mrs. Van Hopper spies Max de Winter, the owner of Manderly and she at once orders her companion, a gentle and well bred English girl, to scrape acquaintance with the famous de Winter and then proceeds to make it quite clear that her presence is no longer required while the English celebrity is around. To the astonishment of her employer the erstwhile companion is soon married to the wealthy reclusive and spirited off to Manderly, leaving Mrs. Van Hopper minus a companion upon whom to vent her spite and her slurs.

Murder Mystery Max de Winter is more than 20 years the senior of his bride, and after a brief honeymoon in Italy, takes her home to Manderly. Here the ghostly presence of his former wife Rebecca, who had been drowned mysteriously a week before, at once begins to make itself known to the frightened little bride. Rebecca's rooms have been left untouched since her occupancy, her clothing still hangs in the closets, and her former reign in this gracious old mansion meets the eye in every room. The domestic arrangements prevail exactly as she had ordered them during her lifetime, the gardeners continue to plant the gardens as she preferred them, and her tastes in food continue to influence the daily menus. The new wife feels that her beloved husband is still waiting for his lost love and she suffers accordingly. Not until the final pages of the book does her unhappy jealousy and feeling of inadequacy, change to a deep sympathy for her distraught husband, when she discovers that it was bated and not love for Rebecca which was darkening their marriage. From this point the story develops into a first rate murder mystery with Mrs. Danvers, the housekeeper, who had adored Rebecca with an unhappy and almost pathological passion, as the axis upon whom the final events revolve.

The final solution is a complete surprise and the story closes in a crescendo of fast-moving incidents which clear up the mystery and leave the actors, as well as the reader, breathless with astonishment. And only in the final chapter does one discover that "Rebecca" is really a very tender and beautiful love story.

Bridge Test to Take in Every Phase of Game

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Now that the Self-Rating Examination has been running for two weeks and that the answers to the first seven questions already have appeared in this column, examinees will be able to form a rough idea of what is in store for them. Obviously, so far I have just scratched the surface. Before the eighth, and concluding, week I will have touched on every phase of bridge, bidding and play. I must remind readers that there is no cause for discouragement if they have incurred a great many demerits, because very shortly there will be opportunities to win back some of these points by answering difficult questions. Also, as time goes on, I will attempt to give fuller explanations of my answers so that there can be no doubt as to why such a play was recommended.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	4 hearts	Pass

Usually, an opening four heart or four spade bid is a pure preemptive (shot-out) bid and should not be made on a hand as strong as South's because such a bid interferes greatly with slam bidding. But, in this case, South's partner already had passed, hence South felt that a slam was very remote and that it might be wise to shut out an opposing spade bid.

West opened the spade king, and when East's ten and declarer's nine fell, continued with the spade ace. Declarer ruffed, drew two rounds of trumps, then led a diamond toward dummy's A J 10. The fate of the contract now rested squarely on West's follow-suit card. I greatly fear that 99 in 100 Wests would play the diamond deuce without giving the matter a second thought; that, indeed, they would consider the play that was actually made an evidence of insanity. This particular West put in the diamond queen! But, far from being crazy, the play was brilliant. West already had counted declarer for seven trump tricks. It was very unlikely that South would have bid four hearts vulnerable without another sure trick in his hand. Probably that trick was the club ace. If declarer had three diamonds, there was no hope for the defenders—he would have to make two tricks from dummy's diamond holding. If declarer had only two diamonds, however, it was vital to force him to play dummy's ace immediately. If West ducked, dummy would do likewise. East's king would be forced out, and later declarer would finesse against West's queen. By putting up the queen immediately, West broke the line of communication. Now, if declarer accepted dummy's ace, he would not make another diamond trick. If he ducked, East still would have the king back of the ace-jack.

There are so many hands in which declarer takes successive finesses in a certain suit that it should be an easy matter for the defenders to appraise the situation and, whenever possible, to upset the appraiser.

Old Gardener Says:

A question at this season is whether to burn or compost the accumulation of vines, stalks and unused fruit which cover the ground. Any garden maker who has a little knowledge of conditions as they exist in the garden and is familiar with prevalent insects, beetles and worms, will know immediately what the decision should be. In any event, he should not burn his leaves, and he should save whatever refuse is known not to harbor insects. In badly infested sections, prompt and thorough burning may be the very best way to secure a cleaner garden next year. This is particularly true in sections where the European corn borer is present. The way to get rid of the eggs of this pest is to burn the refuse. The stalks and leaves of all plants should be burned if fear-bugs where this pest is found.

My Neighbor Says—

After the leaves have been removed from the leaves dry them out and burn in dry sand or in Fall, when they may be planted in the ground.

A coat of white or some other kind of sealing coat must be brushed over stained wood that is to be varnished. Otherwise the chemicals in the stain may work through the varnish and cloud it.

To clean an Oriental rug first beat it thoroughly, then brush to remove all dirt. Rub with a stiff brush dipped in warm soap-suds, to which a little ammonia has been added, and rub dry with a soft rag.

Break coals to be burned on the kitchen range into little pieces about the size of an egg. It takes less time to make a good hot fire for a day's cooking, is easy to light and is more economical.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you wish to know the most important course in the school curriculum, be sure to read about Angela's difficulty, and then make sure your child is well grounded in this subject. All education is based on it.

CASE L-154: Angela, aged 8, is a shy little thing.

"She has been very poor in reading and spelling," her mother informed me.

"We have had her eyes examined and she also was given an intelligence test in school, and pronounced normal."

"What can we do to help her with her reading, Dr. Crane? I'll do anything you suggest."

DIAGNOSIS:

Reading is basic to all educational progress, so it is especially wise to give children a thorough grounding in this subject. A good reader can become good at mathematics or music, literature or science.

But poor readers seldom go far in the school system. By all means, therefore, encourage a youngster to read well. But how? Intelligent parents can cooperate with the school and greatly assist a backward reader like Angela. She must learn to look with pleasure upon the subjects of reading and spelling.

As a rule, however, we dislike those things in which we make a poor showing. Angela is no exception.

A child may react to the visual appearance of "believe" without paying close attention to the position of "i" and "e" in that word. But when the child tries to type-write the word, she must pay close attention to the order of the letters and put "i" before "e".

Let the child typewrite a letter every day to her various relatives and friends. It will inflate her ego to operate a typewriter, and this joy will begin to attach to reading and spelling.

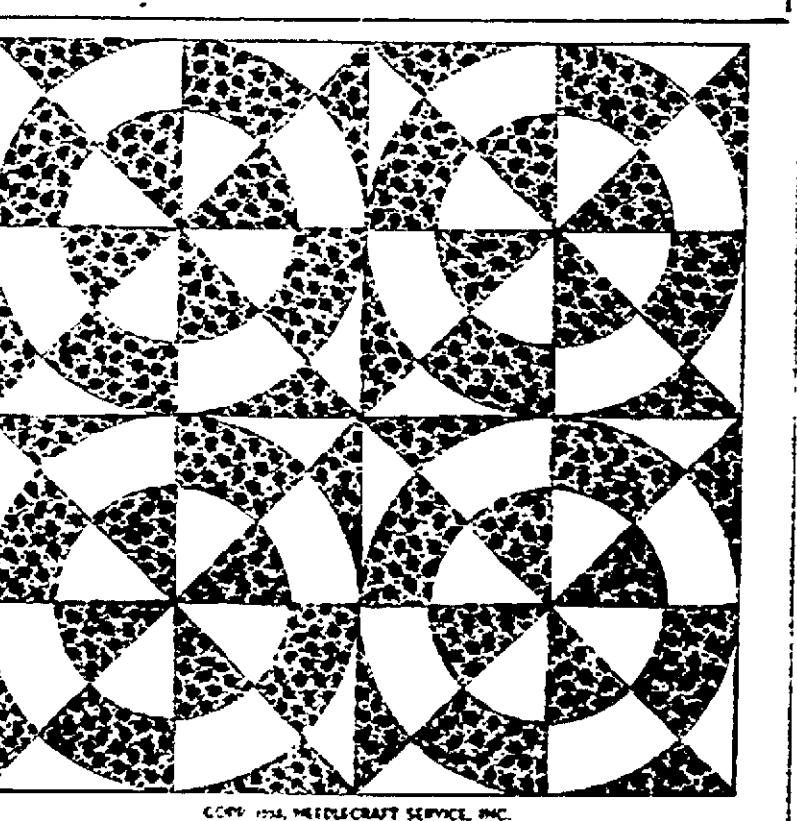

With older children you can type a page of copy with a definite number of misspelled words, then, give the child a limited time, as 2 minutes, to pick out all the wrongly spelled words. This game is also fun for adults, too, who may compete with the children, but let the youngster win a majority of the contests!

Be sure you have a dictionary in your home, and teach your children how to use it not only for pronunciation and definitions but also for checking on their spelling.

Woman Who Marries Widower Must be Tolerant, Patient

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young woman in love with a widower who has two small sons. He can give me every luxury, but there are two things that make me doubt the wisdom of marrying him. One is that I shall expect my husband fully to return my affection, but as he has been married before, could he earnestly and sincerely do this? Also, the thought that he has belonged to another woman and is the father of her children maddens me. The other objection is that I am very independent and cannot bear to think of giving up my freedom. What shall I do?

JANE.

Answer:

It does not seem to me that you are cut out for a widower's wife. To begin with, the woman who marries a widower should be big and broad-minded enough to accept the fact of his previous marriage without jealousy. As you are not able to do so, that is disqualification No. 1.

DOROTHY DIX

Of course, no man can have for his second wife the romantic love that he gave his first. That belongs to youth, and can be no more conjured up again than can any other boyish illusion. The second wife has to reconcile herself to that. Experience takes the edge off any experience, and the man who has been married and who has learned to adjust himself to domesticity, and who has gone to house-keeping, comes into matrimony a second time as a professional and not as an amateur. To him no second bride can be the awesome and wonderful creature that his girl bride was to him. Nor can setting up a new establishment give him the thrill that he got out of buying his first pots and pans, chairs and tables.

Of course, it isn't any woman who loves a man not to feel a pang of regret that she shouldn't have been his first wife and share those first experiences with him, but there is gain as well as loss in being a No. 2 wife. For the mere fact that a man has been married once fits him better for it a second time. Like the hero of Mr. Kipling's story, who learned about women from every lady he loved, the widower has obtained a liberal education about the feminine sex and how to handle it from his first wife. He is housebroken, so to speak, and particularly, he is bill-broken.

He doesn't think, as the youthful bridegroom does, that a wife must be a miracle worker who can run a home on air. Widowers are proverbially good providers. And having had experience of women's moods and tempers, they are able to distinguish between temper and nerves. They know enough not to argue when a woman wakes up with a jumping headache, and have the sense to put on their hats and make a sneak of it when she ties up her head and starts in on a day's cleaning.

And not infrequently, although the widower may not give his second wife the romantic love which he gave his first wife, he gives her a deeper passion, for the first love may have been just a hobbled love affection that he outgrew, while his second love is the full abiding love of his manhood.

So I urged Angela's mother to buy a printing outfit and some large sheets of cardboard. The latter was cut into stripes on which words and phrases were printed. We call these "flash cards."

"They are flashed in front of the child for an instant and then hidden from sight. If a child can name the word or phrase seen in that brief exposure, he gets the card. The one with the larger stack of cards wins the game."

In dealing with children, let them win about two out of every three attempts. The parents may compete with the child, thus making a game out of this study.

Aids To Reading.

A typewriter is also an excellent aid to reading, and especially to spelling, for it calls the child's attention to the internal structure of words.

A child may react to the visual appearance of "believe" without paying close attention to the position of "i" and "e" in that word. But when the child tries to type-write the word, she must pay close attention to the order of the letters and put "i" before "e".

Let the child typewrite a letter every day to her various relatives and friends. It will inflate her ego to operate a typewriter, and this joy will begin to attach to reading and spelling.

Dear Miss Dix—No one loves me. I haven't a friend in the world. Every day is the same old thing—getting up and out and going to bed and over again the next day. How can I find something worth while in life?

LONELY.

Answer:

If nobody loves you and you have no friends, it is your own fault and you have only yourself to blame. The world is full of people who are just sloshing over with affection that they are ready to bestow on any one who will let them.

But in order to be loved you have to be lovable. You have to be sweet and amiable and easy to get along with. And if you are to have friends you have to be friendly. You must be willing to do things for other people to give them pleasure. You must literally weep with those who weep and rejoice with those who rejoice.

So suppose you start out and cultivate people. Don't wait for them to make all the advances. Go to see them. Make yourself pleasant and entertaining. Listen to bore. Remember anniversaries. Send people flowers, especially when they are sick. Do the thousand little things for others that you would like to have them do for you and watch them respond.

You say each day is like each preceding day—eating, sleeping, getting up in the morning and going to bed at night. Well, life is bound to be routine, but you can put in a lot of interesting things between the breakfast bell and the dinner gong. What you need is work. Get some absorbing occupation that will keep you so busy that the days will go by in a flash and you respond.

Perhaps we owe it to Hollywood, this radical change of using lip coloring, in drawing the size and shape lips you most desire. For no longer need you vainly wish for full lips, if yours are thin, or for a cupid's bow if you have none. There are ways and means for having the lips you want!

Of course, in Hollywood, the faces which appear on the screen, little resemble the original models. Celebrities have been tampered with by eyelashes stuck on, and lips drawn to order. And hairlines frequently plucked to give more glamour. All this is possible because screen make-up, which comes in several shades of nut brown, is thick and dark enough to cover the evidence of remodeling. The girl off screen has no such aid, so she must limit her facial refashioning to less drastic changes. Trimmed eyebrows, darkened lashes and lip painting.

Pencils, Brushes, Liquids.

For your lips, ranging in becoming shades, you now have from which to choose, permanent liquid coloring, pencil coloring, lipstick, or jar paste with camel-hair brushes.

Most common is lipstick, of course. And girls shop madly to find an indecent color so their lip outline will remain intact through a busy day.

Recently growing in favor, is the colored indecent liquid which must be ever so carefully applied with either its own wool-stick or a pencil brush. These actually stain your lips (harmlessly) and require a special "remover" at the end of the day.

Pencil lip coloring is not new, but heretofore only actresses of stage and screen realized the advantage of penciling a lip outline first and then filling it in with matching color. But now women everywhere are adopting this method and drawing for themselves the size and shape of lips they feel are most attractive.

Jar paste is ancient, but its recent revival in favor is because some women can more easily apply color to their lips with a camel-hair brush, than with a lipstick. So when they apply make-up at home they use the jar paste and carry it in their bag, a matching lipstick for reconstruction work!

Fun In Experimenting.

If you are not familiar with all these lip colorings write me your questions and I shall try to answer them. Have fun in drawing lips of various sizes and shapes and colors on your own face, and choose the outline which gives you the most allure!

Stepmother Must Cultivate Child's Friendship Slowly

BY ANGELO PATRI

"I am about to become a stepmother to a girl of fifteen. She was very fond of her mother, and while she says nothing I feel that she resents me. I'd like to make friends with her, but I don't seem to be able to get anywhere with her. She answers politely and the conversation ends there. I am worried about it. How can I reconcile her to my being her new mother? Shall I ask her to call me mother? I don't want to be known as a stepmother because they have such bad reputations. What is a person in my position to do?"

Make friends with the child or give up any idea of taking a mother's place to her. A girl of fifteen is a person in her own right. She is almost a woman. She has opinions, tastes, likes and dislikes. She judges people and their behavior. She is inexperienced and often makes mistakes and she needs the guidance of her mother, or one who can stand in her mother's place. But, if she does not accept that guidance she cannot get that help, nor can the new mother give it.

The best way to accomplish the establishment of a fine relation between a child of this age and a new mother, is to accept the child as a person, in the house whose opinions and tastes and judgments are to be respected. Cultivate the acquaintance of this young person on the same terms that you would use in cultivating that of an adult. Don't make the mistake of putting the child in her place and assuming parental authority over her. That way disaster waits.

Take your time. Don't rush her, or him. Listen a lot and say little. Find something in the child to praise, honestly. Find plenty to like about the character and manners of this young person. Try to learn what hopes and ambitions, wishes and dreams animate her. But don't try to win your way by bribery or flattery. She will see through that at once and despise you as a weakling and a cheat.

This child is in a hard place. She has lost her best friend, her mother, and she is to see a stranger come into the house and take the place of that beloved one. Try to understand her feeling and sympathize with it and then try to find a common bond. Maybe she loves her father dearly and that will form the bond. If this is so and she is allowed to feel that she is important to her father, and that this new member of the family wants to stand with her in loving relationship to him, like a new sister, the way might be open.

Don't ask such a child to call you mother. Let her choose the name she will use. If she willingly gives you the cherished title you can know that your cause is almost won. You can go on from there on the basis of a sisterly relationship until a higher one is formed between you.

Whenever you speak of the child's mother do so with respect. The child will be quick to feel your feeling and quicker to respond to it. Be careful to do nothing to make the child think that you want to wipe out all memory of her mother. Time will work its way with you both, and if you make a good start, claiming nothing asserting nothing, asking for love, you will have a happy ending to your story.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and discipline of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Don't Marry The Man

By Jeanne Bowman

THE CHARACTERS

Kathleen Gregory: peppery haired member of the Gregory clan goes West incognito to secure a right-of-way for The Golden Girl mine.

Donald MacDonald: owner of the rival Stubbhorn Boy mine, hates the Gregorys.

Bridget: Kathleen's companion.

Yesterday, Kathleen learns that a right-of-way could be secured if there was priority of claim.

Chapter 14

"Come With Me"

Over tea and "sly cake," which Kathleen thought resembled a Napoleon with raisin stuffing, Donald's housekeeper told her of the garden and chickens augmented her husband's salary.

"A deed Donald has given to each of us, so should anything happen to him, or the mine, or new owners come in, we own this home and could manage to live. Ah, the poor Gregorys," Mrs. Arthur concluded, and Kathleen knew she referred to the Gregory miners.

The rain which had threatened to fall all day, had made good its threat when they were leaving. Mrs. Arthur looked at the sky and sighed deeply. "A great winter, Donald, a green winter."

"Nonsense," laughed Donald. "This is only a green fall; we'll have snow."

"Ah, but Donald, Mrs. Campbell saw a blossom on her apple tree three days back. I heard her calling to Annie. That's death before spring."

Donald laughed again. "I'm going to send Balmey over to see you. He'll take the woe out of that one; tell you the Camp! It's apple tree is in a warm corner and with the rain the tree thinks it's spring. He'll tell you that superstition sprang from people growing careless in warm weather and not laying up for the cold."

"Aye, Balmey has a reason for every superstition. I wish I could believe him."

Kathleen left Mrs. Arthur's home in a thoughtful mood. The mood remained through the long evening, through the delicious dinner on the table which included all the favorite Scottish dishes from onion pudding to Rice Flour cake.

Donald MacDonald in his own home was yet another person—of his family, especially of his widowed mother who summered with him, then returned to Los Angeles for the winter; and of his cousin Norman who would be with him before long.

Kathleen listened with one ear to the door she seemed about to come to some vibration in that room: a peculiar throbbing which had an intoxicating quality. She was checked to learn that the throbbing was the quick beat of her heart. The altitude, unquestionably; that and the air. The air in these mountains was so clear and light one felt buoyant.

She admitted enjoying the comfort of the lodge. Later, huddled before her own fire, she spoke of it. "Imagine that fire kept going without me. And that couch, Bridget, there were moments when I wanted to sink clear out of sight and spend the night on it."

Her bed was as uncompromising as the future. It was a cold, barren fact. She spent most of the night tossing on it, her mind active—building, rebuilding, and with each toss laid on board, calling MacDonald to come and see if he could have built as well.

Morning dawned with a steady rain dimming the landscape and the big room filled with damp, cold air. Had she not been so intent upon her plans, Kathleen might have complained. As it was she felt vague pity for Bridget who had been drawn into this life with her, and slipped in to build a fire for her.

"A Fairy Tale"

"I'm going to crash the Gregorys today," she confided. "I don't know how, but I'll watch me." If intense desire were prayer, then Kathleen's prayers were answered. She was idling along the trail when a man rushed up to the door of a cot. A moment later a woman throwing a coat over her head rushed out with him, caught sight of Kathleen and called.

"Oh, Miss Riley, go stay with the baby. My Johnny's got took!"

There was no more. She had fled in the wake of the man who was striding on ahead and Kathleen, after one glance around, went into the cot.

For a moment she stood in the doorway, then hastily she closed the door. The big room was dark. The big room, she realized, encompassed most of the cottage. There was a tiny kitchen alcove, and in a moment she discovered a second alcove. Coughing came from there. She hurried in.

A tiny girl lay there. When the paroxysm was over she smiled up at Kathleen. "You're the gold lady," she said hoarsely. "Like in fairy tales. Tell me a fairy tale."

The Gold Lady sat on a stool by the bed. Tell a fairy tale in these surroundings? The house was immaculately clean, but it was cluttered. The pots MacDonald had prophesied would be used during a rain were there. The ceiling was discolored by previous rains. It sagged in places, was crudely patched in others.

An iron stove stood in one corner of the room, a tiny coal fire burning. Kathleen made a move to replenish it but the child stopped her. "We only make big ones in winter," she admonished. "Once upon a time—" began. Kathleen stopped.

"—There was a Golden Girl," prompted the child, and when Kathleen didn't go on—"and she hid right up out of the mine and the golden oranges in her hands and she gives us all we could eat. And she was so beautiful we was all blinded. The kids made a throat don't hurt no more I'll tell you all of it."

Kathleen told a fairy tale then. It was the truth but to the listener unbelievable. A story about a Golden Girl who lived in a Golden room and slept in a bed of Gold and drove in a Golden chariot. And as she talked she saw the poverty about her. Under the child's guidance she rubbed the bony little chest with coals-grease and kerosene. When the coughing started again she fed her what she assumed was a precious liquid of crushed onion and lemon.

"Go easy on it," warned the child. "Pop's got miners' cough. Don't you know what that it'll do to you are green. It's the rock dust that gets in miners' lungs. Most all muckers have it; all the Gregorys are muckers."

Kathleen might have learned more but the mother reappeared. Her face set in white, stoical lines. "Can't you tell me?" begged Kathleen.

"Tain't much," sighed the woman. "The boys at school tried to make apparatus like the MacDonaldest. When them, have. They couldn't. The bar broke when Johnny was up. Only his leg is broke. But there can I get a doctor? They said there were takin' him in Carsted, that's twenty miles and those bones a rubbin'."

"But there are doctors at both mines," protested Kathleen.

"You're crazy!"

"Just for the miners. There's a MacDonald doctor, but I'd never trust a lad of mine to his hand. He have to pay for the Gregory one and I haven't the money. They'll wait for it in Carsted, or we'll go, chariv'

Kathleen felt an insane desire rush to the Gregory mine. Lift the doctor up by the nape of the neck and bring him to the cot; and in so doing, to walk over Kathleen, preferably on his plushy face.

"An' Balmey said 'way believe' in I did."

Kathleen stood up, rigid with trail when a man rushed up to the door.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A Little Saturday Talk
Last Saturday we had part of a letter from Lester C. Essig, 14-year-old high school boy who shot a polar bear with arrows. Here is the rest of the letter:
"It took all hands to pull the bear on the boat. We had to rig up double block and tackle from both masts before we could swing him aboard. We tried to estimate his weight, and finally agreed that 1,800 pounds was just about right.
"After taking the bear ashore, we took off the skin and carved big bear steaks. We had promised the meat to our Eskimo pilot Wetaltak, and packed it for him in metal casks.
"We fleshed the skin, and thought we had done a pretty good job of it, but Wetaltak shook his head. He said if we would run over to Cape Horn he would have Eskimo women flesh the skin as only natives can.
"On Cape Horn we found a little Eskimo settlement. The people lived in crudely-built homes, slept on rough board beds, and dressed in clothing made of rough cotton, wool and seal skin. They burned seal oil for heat and light, and large drums of it stood beside the huts. I had never visited a real Eskimo village before. The little Eskimo children put yokes on their shoulders to carry pails of bear meat to the huts.
"Comes made of seal skin were fastened high on poles - to keep them out of reach of the hungry husky dogs. Dog sledges, 18 and 20 feet long, were leaning against the low buildings. One big wolf dog had a litter of small puppies rolling and tumbling about. She glared at us from her dugout, under a log, when we played with the puppies.
"Gulls and hawks flew low trying to get at the bits of bear meat which fell while the Eskimo women were taking the flesh from the bear hide. The dogs snapped at each other over the tiniest morsel.
"When the fleshing was over, we went aboard the Joy H. The trip homeward was pleasant. Various newspapers stated I was the first hunter to kill a polar bear with a bow and arrow. After reaching Chicago, Dad arranged to have the trophy mounted as a life-like museum piece to be presented to my school.
That must have been a great adventure for a youth of Lester's age. Indeed, I feel certain that a hunter of any age would be proud to bring in a polar bear with a bow and arrow!

New London Bows To Shawano, 13-0

Puts Up Great Battle but Hasn't the Punch To Score
LINE SHOWS WELL
Blocked Kick and Fumble Lead to Invaders' Tallies

BY ALVIN BRAULT
NEW LONDON—Fighting with real homecoming spirit, New London High school gridders outbattled Shawano High school eleven in their best game of the season only to lose 13 to 0 before a big crowd under the lights here last night. The Red and White lacked only that final scoring punch and the breaks to win.

Outgunning the Indians 12 first downs to 8, the Stacymen threatened seriously several times on the 8 and 10 yard line but were stopped cold. The visitors converted a blocked punt and a fumble deep in New London territory for their two markers. Otherwise the home goal costs never were endangered.

Billy Reed's long punts, despite an injured leg, kept New London busy fighting back but 10, 15 and 30 yard runs by Louis "Ike" Poepeke made up for his lack of kicking ability. Although Reed was handicapped by his injury he made long gains, and when he had to leave the game late in the third quarter, Fullback Brennan showed even more running ability.

Linemen in Great Game
Coach Stacy's linemen put up a great performance, providing blocking and interference that tore wide holes in the Shawano wall and let the backs through for long, jagged gains. Ben Huzzar found wide end sweeps effective on a reverse and Hammerberg relieved Poepeke for some good runs. The whole team tackled viciously.

Out of 12 attempted passes the Stacymen completed one for no gain but made 18 yards on another that was intercepted and fumbled. Another was intercepted but stopped in safe territory. Shawano tried four and completed two for a total of 17 yards. New London suffered 15 yards loss in penalties, Shawano 30.

The Red and White made four first downs to three for Shawano in the first period and threatened twice in the third quarter when they earned five first downs to Shawano's one.

Indians Get Going
The teams saw-sawed across mid-field during the first quarter. The invaders scored in the second when they blocked Poepeke's punt as he attempted to kick from his own 10 yard line. Poepeke picked the bounding ball out of the air on the five yard line and ran it back to the 25 but the Indians were not to be thwarted.

On a series of line plunges Reed took the ball through for a first down to the half-yard stripe and on the third down Brennan took the ball from center and scored standing up. Reed's placekick was good for the extra point.

In the third quarter New London hopes rose twice but both drives were stopped short inside the 10-yard line. Shawano was on the defensive the entire period.

Starting with New London heels on the 17-yard stripe, Poepeke plunged through the line to within inches of a first down on the 27. Stewart Hammerberg pulled a fake to twist over to the 31. Poepeke made a dash to the 35 and then Huzzar got off on a wide sweep around left end to make another first down on the 45.

From mid-field Poepeke sidestepped through the Indian defense to the 30 and after Huzzar had another try Poepeke's interference opened a path that led him 29 yards before he was pulled down from behind on the 6-yard line. Four line smashes netted two yards and the Indians punted out of danger to the 50.

New London on 15-Yard Line
The Red and White returned the pishin to the 40 and then plunged to the 30 after which a 15-yard Shawano penalty put them within 15 yards of the goal.

Shawano's second opportunity came in the fourth period when McKeljohn, New London back, stopped a punt and it bounced out of his hands, the Indians recovering on New London's 25. Brennan pulled two punners plays in succession to tally the first taking him to the 13 and the second over the goal line. Billy Reed came back into the game to make the kick but his effort was weak and low.

It looked like another chance for the invaders when Ike Poepeke dropped on the kickoff on his own 3-yard line but with their backs to the goal posts, the Stacymen fought back the Indians until the final whistle left them in mid-field.

A lucky pass in the second quarter looked like a chance for New London but the white ball was half removed all speculation. After two 16-yard runs to the Indians' 40 Poepeke forced a long one meant for Huzzar. It was intercepted but bounced from the receiver's hands into Huzzar's on the 19 but the march ended there.

YEARLINGS

Kaws, Dutchmen Ready for Battle at Little Chute

LITTLE CHUTE—The Kaukauna Merchant football team will invade the Little Chute park Sunday afternoon for a game with the Flying Dutchmen, scheduled to start at 2 o'clock. Next month the teams will show in another contest at Kaukauna.

So far this year the Dutchmen have won three games and lost two. The wins were over Clintonville, Appleton and DePere. The defeats were at the hands of Merrill and Appleton. Three other games have been postponed on them for various reasons.

Kaukauna will show a speedy aggression starring Peterson, McCormick, Mathes, Block and Neitz, former Kaukauna High school stars. Others who are on the squad and have seen a lot of service in the past are Mooney, Block, Eiting and Neisen. Dutch Egan, another veteran, will be lost to the Kaws because of a back injury.

The Chuters will have their entire squad available and will show Frank Koehn, flashy back of last year, with blockers like Hammer, Hartjes and Al Boots, he is expected to get away often. The Chuters also will have Teddy Maas and Lamers to lug the leather and toss a few passes.

Johnny Block, who played a great game at Merrill, Wassenberg of Seymour and Van Dyke and L. Hoff, will get plenty of opportunity to show as ends. Porky Porath, big tackle, will hold down one position and Heinz bowed 210 and Sonnenleitner 475 as Wisconsin Distributing company won all three from Westenberg, led by Wally Horn with 203 and 559 and Braeger with 212. Schomisch had 516 as Clark's Cleaners won two from Ummuth, led by Heinrich who had 205 and Melv Schneider with 559.

Clintonville '11'
Clintonville FWD football team meets the Sturgeon Bay Cherryland Marines here. The Trucks have been absent from the gridiron for two weeks and cancelled their game with Chippewa Falls last Sunday. Manager McCauley is planning an entirely revised team and the lineup still is more or less a mystery. So far this season Clintonville has not won any games and has not scored a point. Twice it has played series games with the Appleton Reds and both times had good chances of scoring.

Earlier in the season the Marines played the Chits and stole the show. The Marines are rated as the top semi-pro outfit in the state and had not lost a game until two weeks ago.

All the Trucks are in good shape for the game after allowing two weeks to heal their injuries (and should be ready to go when the whistle blows at 2 o'clock).

Pittsburgh—Coach John "Blood" McNally of the Pittsburgh Pirates, in the midst of his fourth season as a National Football League player, proved that it still can be done by playing 60 minutes against the Green Bay Packers last Sunday. McNally has been playing longer than any player now active in the league.

High individual series was Alice Jansen's 604. Edith Weyenberg was second with 593 and Rose Verbeeten third with 534.

High game of the week went to Min and Bill's Tavern with 2,455. Ideal Beauty Shop was second with 2,423 and S. and H. Drugs third with 2,349.

Cleveland—Members of the Cleveland Rams National Football League team call Head Coach Art Lewis "Pappy". The nickname is reverse English, however, as Lewis is only 26 years old.

Little Chute—Alice Jansen shot high series of 604 and high game of 220 but her scores were not enough and the Ideal Beauty Shop lost two games to Min and Bill's Tavern in the Women's league this week. For the winning team, Rose Verbeeten had high series of 534 and high game of 187.

Hoffman's Bakery won two games from Mellow Brew. Min Williamsen bowled high series of 492 and high game 198. For the losers, Angeline Brys had high series of 512 and high game of 215.

Edith Weyenberg led the Verkullen Furniture Store to two wins over S. and H. Drugs. She had high series of 593 and high game of 204. For the losers, Toots Jansen had high series of 495 and high game of 195.

Adler Brau kept up its winning ways when it took Frank's Tavern into camp for two games. Mrs. Van Able paced the winning team with high series of 490 and high game of 177. For the losers, Maybelle Schommer had high series of 503 and high game of 180.

High team series honors went to Min and Bill's Tavern with 2,455. Ideal Beauty Shop was second with 2,423 and S. and H. Drugs third with 2,349.

Packers Wary as They Prepare to Meet Cleveland

Rams are Sensation of the Pro League After 3 Victories

CLEVELAND—The only four times champions in the history of the National Professional Football league, the Green Bay Packers who now are out after their fifth pennant will provide the opposition for the Cleveland Rams here Sunday in the latter team's last home appearance of the season.

To make the Rams' foes look even more formidable, the Wisconsin gridderies are leading the Western division standings, and with 140 points are pacing the entire circuit offensively.

Three Straight Wins
Against this record the Cleveland aggregation offers an unbeaten slate since Coach Art Lewis took over the reins. Three wins under him stacked against three losses, in the early part of the season have left the club with a 500 rating and an outside chance for the division title. A win over the Packers Sunday at the American league baseball park would definitely place the Rams in the running. The game will start at 2 p. m. eastern standard time (1 p. m. central standard time).

Three of the Green Bay players return to their native state for the contest. They are Bob Monnett, halfback from Bucyrus, Ohio, who played undergraduate ball at Michigan State; Clarke Hinkle, all league back from Bucknell who made his home at Toronto, Ohio, before establishing a permanent residence at Green Bay, and Charley (Ookie) Miller, Purdue center from Akron who played with the Rams last season.

Squad About Intact
The Packers arrived in Cleveland this morning and were sent through a brief workout by Coach Curly Lambeau and Red Smith, his assistant, to shake off their train legs. With Russ Letlow, guard and Champ Seibold, tackle, recovered from injuries, the squad is intact.

The recent revival of the Rams, whose three victories were gained over the Chicago Bears (2), and the Detroit Lions, has re-awakened fan interest here and Sunday's battle is expected to bring out the largest Cleveland football crowd in many years.

Marion Winner Over Manawa by 13 to 6 Score

Losers Count Only Mark on 70-Yard Gallop by Gehrke

MARION—Marion High school won its first Tri-County conference game here Friday afternoon when it defeated Manawa by a 13 to 6 score.

Marion kicked off to Manawa and the ball was downed on the 15-yard line. Neither team showed ground gaining ability and exchanges of punts followed. Just before the quarter ended, Pedda fumbled a Manawa punt and Manawa recovered on the 40-yard line.

Marion recovered on a fumble shortly after the second quarter opened. Marion counted a first down but lost the ball on a fumble. Near the end of the period Manawa opened with passes and three completed tosses carried the ball from the Manawa 20 to the Marion 20. Here Lorrig recovered a fumble and Elandt punted out of danger and the half ended 0-0.

In the third period the teams exchanged punts and Marion took the ball on the 50. Elandt gained 20 yards and Lorrig galloped around left end for 15. After being stopped a couple times, Lorrig went through center to count a touchdown. Elandt placekicked for the point.

The lead didn't last long, however, for Marion kicked to Manawa and the ball went into play on the 330-yard stripe. Gehrke took it off his right tackle and galloped 70 yards to score. A pass for the point was incomplete.

Marion Leads Again
Manawa's kick was returned to Marion's 40-yard line. Marion made a first down on Manawa's 25-yard line. Elandt then passed to Daley on the 10 yard stripe and he had an open field for Marion's second touchdown. Elandt's placekick was blocked.

Score Marion 13, Manawa 6.
At the end of the 3rd quarter Manawa had the ball in its possession after making a first down in Midfield.

In the fourth quarter Marion was busy protecting its 7-point lead. Marion made one first down in the fourth quarter to Manawa's four first downs.

Lorrig intercepted one of Gehrke's passes on Marion's 10 yard line. Lorrig punted to Manawa's 30-yard line. In the closing minutes of the game Manawa attempted to complete some long passes to pull the game out of the first but the whistle put a stop to their efforts.

Armstrong Looks Bad in Workouts

Lip, Injured in Ambers Fight, Bruised in Spar Session

New York—There has been increasing opinion for the last several days that Henry Armstrong will get knocked out of the ring by Cefirino Garcia in their fight for the welterweight championship next Wednesday night at the Garden.

Garcia, a powerful, hard hitting Filipino, has looked extremely good in every workout, while Armstrong appears to have lost some of his zing in the two months since he won the lightweight crown in a gory mixup with Lou Ambers. A lot of the wise old heads have looked the pair over carefully and have picked Garcia.

While Garcia has been belting sparring partners clear out of the ring with his terrific under-hand swipes, Armstrong's workouts have been listless except for rare flurries. Henry's under lip that was so badly cut in the Ambers fight became bruised in one of his sparring sessions and he since has done his boxing protected by a mask something like those worn by baseball catchers.

Fred Apostoli, sitting in the next chair at one of Armstrong's workouts, voiced the opinion of many when he observed: "He doesn't look like the same man."

Jobs and Scholarships Still Available to Boys Who are Good Footballers

What is today's situation in American colleges regarding football subsidization? The AP Feature Service, through its correspondents all over the U. S., investigated. Here are the results of the survey.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A good football player doesn't have to worry on many campuses about paying his way through college.

Sometimes the schools pay the freight, sometimes alumni organizations.

Athletes who need financial help are found jobs, in lieu of scholarships, at some colleges.

Many institutions refuse to subsidize with university monies but raise no objection to old grads turning the bills for promising quarterbacks.

However, very, very few grid-ders are actually paid cash above actual expenses anymore. The day when star players got expenses plus is virtually past.

The "tramp" athlete is definitely out. So is the chap who never attended classes. Schools insist their athletes be at least fair scholars. Many require them to be above average.

Colleges are getting away from the hypocrisy that existed a few years ago when some revealed pious faces while, behind their backs, they passed out "free rides" to athletes.

These are facts gathered in interviews with well-posted sports writers in every section of the country. The Southeastern conference set the pace a year ago in honest, outright dealing when it legalized athletic scholarships.

Southwest Indefinite
No definite plan is in effect in the Southwest conference. Two years ago a movement was started to bring subsidizing from behind "whitewashed fences" and to lay it in the open on a sort of "pay-as-you-play" basis, but the movement lacked unanimous support.

Most of the New England colleges, including Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, Amherst and Williams, are generally regarded as "illy whites." However, these schools like others throughout the land, can do nothing about it when an alumni group sends a fine football player to college and pays his expenses.

At Pittsburgh, athletes aren't paid for playing football but jobs are provided. These jobs do not, at least theoretically, depend on participation in football.

No Carnegie Tech money goes to assist athletes. However, all alumni aid for athletes is welcomed, so long as the students thus helped meet educational requirements.

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

A DOWNSWING FUNDAMENTAL
One must not lose sight of the fact that although a wide body turn is most desirable in a golf stroke to gain distance and apply smoothness to the stroke, more errors are likely to creep into such a swing because the arc of the stroke is longer. For instance in a wide sweep of this kind many golfers lose sight of the fact that the right elbow should be kept comfortably near the right side.

In the above illustrations the correct technique is shown. At the top of the stroke the right elbow is about parallel to the ground, while the first motion of the downswing which is a turn of the left hip to the left, brings the right elbow down near the right side. This keeps the hands from travelling outside the line of flight and causing a cutting across from the outside in at the moment of impact. In this manner too, the bodily power can be more efficiently applied to the ball.

THE SHOW:

It takes you two hours to see a football game. It takes a university a year to prepare for that game. Football is a very big business. Football pays the mortgage on the stadium—and even on the rest of the college, too. That is why it is so important—and why preparations are so extensive. These photographs, made at Northwestern, show the preliminaries most universities go through every year.

Northwestern must buy $5,500 worth of medicine yearly.

Report Pittsburgh Will Give Fordham 'the Works'

BY SID FEDER
(Pinch-Hitting for Eddie Brietz)
NEW YORK —(P)—Grapevine says Pitt is going all out for Fordham this afternoon like it hasn't been years... Goldberg and Co. are vain to scramble those goose-eggs once and for all... Rookie crop in the National Hockey league is so hot, there isn't a holdout veteran in the loop... The older fellows were so scared of their jobs they stepped on each other rushing to sign on the dotted line... Sammy Baugh, farmed to Sacramento in the Cardinals' baseball chain for '39, isn't too sure yet whether he'll make the trip to the coast... Figures if it's a good football year (with money in the bank) he may give up baseball... Japan has decided to send only a small team to the '40 Olympics, mostly swimmers... Can't afford a full squad, and doesn't want to make too big a plunge after cancelling the games in Tokyo.

Light Heavyweight Champ Says Crown Has Brought Him Little

New Haven, Conn. —(P)—John Henry Lewis today is "the winner and still champion" of the world's light heavyweights—but he doesn't know what to do with the title. The Phoenix, Ariz., Negro, weak from making 174 pounds, successfully withstood the serious challenge of Al Gainer, New Haven black panther, four pounds lighter, in a 15-round title bout last night unleashing a vicious attack in the final five rounds to win the unanimous decision of the two judges and Referee Dave Fitzgerald.

The bout attracted a small crowd of only 2,278 that paid a net gate of $7,085. The champion is to collect a check today for half of this amount while Gainer fought for ten per cent.

Gainer, who piled up an early lead with steaming left hooks, headed into the tenth round in the van, only to fade under the punishment doled out by the champ's smashing two-fisted attack to the head and body.

In the dressing room after the battle, Lewis said it was a "good scientific fight" but "I don't know what to do with the title. There doesn't seem to be any money in it and hasn't been any since I've had it. I had some trouble making the weight and what I got for asking the title tonight and going through a good tough fight certainly wasn't worth it."

Al Mele, Gainer's manager, said his fighter fought from the fifth round on with an injured left hand, which pained the local boy severely.

KEEN SIGHT OF ANIMALS

By Cal Johnson
HAWKS, buzzards, ospreys, and eagles are given credit for having very sharp sight and their optical range is supposed to reach far. To the feathered family goes the championship for distance seeing ability, but the animal life of the solid ground is not far behind when it comes to keen optical vision.

The old expression "lynx-eyed" or "hawk-eyed" is supposed to convey the idea of being sharp or farsighted. The lynx, as is true of the whole cat family, is sharper sighted than members of the canine family, or perhaps any of the other four-footed animals. The hawk, eagle, raven, crow, and many other birds must take precedence as to power of vision. The birds' "eyes" have it. Visions are a rather dull-sighted race, comparatively speaking, especially the bloodhounds. Almost everyone knows that the collie, the shepherd and the greyhound can see better than the bloodhound. But we cannot overlook the keen-scented nose given the latter to make up for any deficiency in sight.

Just recently I had a campfire chat with an old friend who related an experience which had to do with the sight ability of wild animals. I pass it on to you as no doubt it will interest you as much as it did me.

Said my friend:

"Some years ago I accidentally, or incidentally, learned that the otter possesses the power of sight beyond any ability which I expected. I was watching a runway on the upper waters of a northern river where the deer forded the stream occasionally in passing down from the hillside over into the swamp on the other side. Here the river was about 200 yards wide and not very deep.

"After sunrise and as I sat on the bank with my back against a tree I discovered an otter lying lengthwise on a log on the opposite shore. The log lay in a slanting position from the bank, reaching out into the stream and pointing diagonally up river, so that the animal lay quartered toward me. Otherwise I might not have noticed him at all—and he must have got there while I had been sitting motionless under the tree.

"But simultaneously with the first motion made toward raising my camera from my lap, the otter slid off the log into the water and was out of sight. The mere flash of my hand was detected by the alert eye of the animal. All wild animals, of course, are careful observers of their surroundings. However, I am confident that the flicker of my hand was the first intimation the otter received of my presence.

Pegler Says There May be Two Sides to That Lost Baby Story

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Every shriek-easy who has not a previous engagemnt to take on about something else at the moment will not make a noisy case for government medical care out of the report from Philadelphia that a destitute woman had her baby unattended, and lost the baby, after six physicians refused to respond to an emergency call.

This report ignored, however, the well-known fact of life that such cries do not come without warning like gunshot wounds and traffic injuries, and avoid consideration of the possibility of contributory negligence by the woman and the man involved.

The account is incomplete as to why a woman so long forwarned had failed, whether by her own fault or for other reasons, to arrange to receive the benefit of free services which undoubtedly exist not only in so large and enlightened a city as Philadelphia but almost everywhere in this country.

This incompleteness is no ground for an assumption that the woman and the husband did neglect their responsibility and some comment have suggested, as the account and some comment have suggested, that the six physicians were simply heartless and would not trouble themselves with a charity case at an inconvenient hour, but six physicians refused to respond to an emergency call.

Moreover, if the hospital services of Philadelphia are anything like those of New York a woman need not have a baby to bring the ambulance to her door with an intern to do the right thing by her. In New York, at least, the royal indigents who know the facilities which a mothering city provides for their little ills have been known to call an ambulance to fetch a doctor to treat a cold, and there is a veritable case of a conscientious and miserably overworked young doctor who was turned out of his bed in the middle of the night to do for a lady whose only trouble was that she could not get to sleep. If the young physician had whanged the lady briskly over the head with a bottle to relieve her trouble that would have been the human thing to do. Instead, however, the youth whipped up something in a glass, gave a dose of the same to her husband who was wakened, too—and tucked them in, turned out the light and tipped away on his career of succor to suffering humankind.

Some So Shiftless They Neglect Respectable Ills

The same doctor had recently been yanked out of bed—they were short-handed in the hospital, as usual, and he was sleeping fast in sprits—to attend a negro woman who was drunk and had cut her foot on a broken glass—nothing serious. But as she sat in the chair and he cleaned and bound her wound the patient maintained a flow of robust comment, the gist of which was that he must be a rotten doctor or he would see that she was in desperate need of rest and recuperation in a good hospital.

But, while there are those so alert to the prerogatives and rights of exigence that they hesitate not to call an ambulance doctor to treat them for hangover, baldness or chronic fatigue, there are many others so shiftless, ignorant and lazy that they neglect useful respectable ills, such as childbearing, until they are suddenly thrown on the doctors' hands as emergencies.

In the town of Dayton, Tenn., at the time of the memorable monkey trial, there were three general practitioners, one of them a Hopkings man, who made a practice of returning to Baltimore every year or two to keep up with his work. There was no reason why anyone in that town should have been susceptible to typhoid, but inoculation to be had for a small price or even for the asking, but in a population of 15,000 there were fifteen cases of typhoid, and two of the reporters sent in from Washington later came down with it, too, having neglected, apparently, to maintain their immunity.

Might Be Well To Determine The Reasons

Not to find fault too readily with the press work on the story of the destitute Philadelphia woman, I suggest, nevertheless, that the account left untold facts which were no less important than those it did tell. How came the patient not to have made arrangements for attendance in an expected emergency? Was it any fault of hers or the husband's or can it be that Philadelphia simply does not have the

College Courts Along River Nearly Finished

Lawrence College students next week will be brandishing rackets on the new courts along the Fox river bank near the intersection of E. South Water and S. Drew streets, providing the weather permits completion of line painting and is adapted to tennis.

Workmen yesterday started painting lines on the courts, five of which have been constructed on the property formerly occupied by the Graef Manufacturing company. The concrete courts will be left their natural color this fall, but next spring will be stained brown.

Pension Schemes are Burlesqued By 'Society' Formed at Manawa

Manawa—The Manawa Chapter of the "Society to Give Fifty Dollars Every Friday to Folks Under Fifty" has been formed. This is a unique organization prompted by the numerous pension schemes now going the rounds, all of which are favored by politicians.

Everyone can appreciate the alliterative and alluring proposal of "fifty dollars every Friday for folks under fifty." This sum will be paid each week in milk bottle top tokens, which are to be sold liquidating by paying a penny and punching a hole every time the token changes hands. When the hole consumes the top, the transaction is completed and the entire incident closed.

Frank Smith, Jr., is president of the local chapter, with Lawrence Larson, vice president; Margaret Komp, secretary; and Maurice Peterson, treasurer. All the treasurer has to do, of course, is to distribute the milk bottle tops. Maury Stevens and Bill Decker are the chief "hole punchers" while Vally Wandtke and Don Strycharski are the dividend collectors, taking charge of all paper punched from the caps, placing it in presses to be sent to milk bottle top manufacturers to be used all over again.

Other officers will be announced soon, as in this organization every member holds an office.

Annual Stag Dinner Is Held at Weyauwega Hall

Weyauwega—More than eighty members of Erich Arndt Post 176, county officials and their friends attended the annual stag and dinner party at Behnke hall Thursday. H. H. Helble talked on Americanism, schools and present world crisis.

County Commander Charles Yost of Waupaca; A. S. Peterson, post commander, and F. O. Prentice, master of ceremonies, were the other speakers of the evening. Adjutant Carl Dittich gave a report on membership stating the post now has 42 paid up members—over the top—and the drive will continue until Nov. 11.

Autumn Building Brings Reminder From Contractor

Robert Schultz Makes Pointed Suggestions To Home Owners

The annual nationwide burst of early fall building activity is on and homeowners are busily checking, fixing, and repairing their homes. Activity of this sort is a wise move for any homeowner, says Robert A. Schultz, 1228 W. Lawrence street, masonry and concrete contractor, because fixing up means more comfort, happiness, and greater resale value should you want to sell your property. Early fall is the best time to fix up since the indoor season is just around the corner and for real fixing up, a thorough inspection should be made from the cellar to the roof.

In checking the various items which could easily draw attention now he advises that extra careful checking should be made of foundations and basements against dampness and rot. Evidence of the need for repair is usually clear and at small cost weak, porous, unsatisfactory foundations, in addition to basement floors, can be repaired.

At this time of year costs on services and supplies are more or less constant and savings that may be had now will be lost with further delay. Therefore, it is wiser to repair and rebuild now than to meet larger expenses that may arise in the dead of winter or even as late as next year. The happy homeowner is he who is free from the constant worry of repairs and loss of value through untimely neglect.

Mr. Schultz's 30 years of experience as a masonry and concrete contractor will be invaluable to you in carrying out any work which might be necessary. The consistent good judgment he has shown in coping with all types of problem concerning his trade and the numerous examples of his work in evidence throughout this vicinity make it advisable for you to make him your first choice to handle your work. Robert A. Schultz may be reached by phoning 864 or visiting his headquarters at 1228 W. Lawrence street. Consult him first and you may be sure of making your concrete and masonry dollars go farther in material, service, and advice.

Don't Marry The Man

—By Jeanne Bowman

determination. "I'll get the Gregory doctor!"

She was off like a whirlwind. For once the car started without too many objections. Reaching the mine she went directly to the emergency hospital to find the doctor studying a medical magazine.

"You'll come with me!" she exclaimed.

I don't think I can stand it much longer. Here we are. I'll be up to the house as soon as I finish with the boy."

"I'm paying you," Kathleen told him, and as he demurred, "I don't want the Gregorys firing a man like you. But don't tell anyone. Let Kit-Smyth think the family paid." (Copyright, 1938.)
